

ORIENTAL TRANSLATION FUND

NEW SERIES

VOL XVI

LAWĀ' IH

A TREATISE ON SŪFISM

BY

NŪR-UD-DĪN 'ABD-UR-RAHMĀN JĀMĪ

FACSIMILE OF AN OLD ~~MS.~~

WITH A TRANSLATION BY

H WHINFIELD, M A, AND MIRZĀ MUHAMMAD KAZVĪNĪ

And Preface on the Influence of Greek Philosophy upon Sūfism

ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY

22, ALBEMARLE STREET

1906

See but One, say but One, know but One

GULSHAN I RŪZ 1 833

The Alif of the Loved One's form is graven on my heart,
No other letter did my Shaikh ever to me unpart

ḤĪFĪZ Ode 416 (ed Brockhaus)

My heart inquired, 'What is the heaven-sent lore?
If thou'st attained it, teach me, I implore'

'Alif,' I said, 'if there be one within,
One letter serves to name him—say no more'

OMAR KHAYYĀM Quatrain 109

CHECKED 1986

CONTENTS

	PAGE
PREFACE - - - - -	- vii
TRANSLATION OF THE LAWĀ'IH - - - - -	- 17
APPENDICES -
I.—GHAZZĀLĪ ON TAUHĪD - - - - -	- 59
II.—PLOTINUS - - - - -	- 64
III.—GHAZZĀLĪ ON MYSTICAL UNION - - - - -	- 70
FACSIMILE OF MANUSCRIPT OF THE LAWĀ'IH (56 pages)

PREFACE

THE Lawā'ih is a treatise on Sūfī theology or theosophy, as distinguished from the religious emotions experienced by all Sūfis, learned and unlearned alike. Catholic authorities have drawn this distinction between 'experimental' and 'doctrinal' mysticism,¹ and it is a great help towards clear thinking on this subject. The religious emotion common to all mankind is, so to speak, raised to its nth power in the mystics. They are overwhelmed by the sense of the Divine omnipresence, and of their own dependence on God. They are dominated and intoxicated by their vivid sense of the close relation subsisting between the soul and God. They conceive themselves as being in touch with God, feeling His motions in their souls, and at times rising to direct vision of Him by the 'inner light' vouchsafed to them. These religious experiences were the rough material out of which the doctrinal reasoned system, set out in treatises like the Lawā'ih, was built up. Psychologists have advanced various theories as to the genesis of these experiences.² With these we are not at present concerned. But as to the origin of the philosophical ideas and terms employed in the Lawā'ih and similar works to formulate the Sūfī theology, there can be little doubt. The source of Sūfī theology was Neoplatonism.

The title of the book, Lawā'ih, or 'Flashes of Light,'

¹ See the article on 'Mystical Theology' in Addis and Arnold's 'Catholic Dictionary'.

² See Dr William James's 'Varieties of Religious Experience' (Longmans, 1902). It may be doubted whether the 'subliminal self' affords a satisfactory solution of the problem.

gests the philosophy employed to systematize and give a reasoned basis for the unreasoned 'experiences' of unlearned Sūfis. It of course refers to the 'inner light'. The Platonists were called Ishrāqīn or Illuminati, because they regarded intellectual intuition or intuitive reason as the main source of knowledge, whereas the Peripatetics (Mashshā'in) recognised no sources of knowledge except the senses and the discursive reason (Dianoia). The word Ishrāq, or 'Lights,' is often met with in this connection. Thus Shams-ud-dīn Muhammad ash-Shahrazūrī is called by Ḥajī Khalfā 'a metaphysician learned in the inner lights' (Ishrāq).¹ Shihāb-ud-dīn as Suhrawardī, who was put to death at Aleppo in 537 A.H. by order of that valiant defender of the Faith, Sultān Salāh-ud-dīn, wrote a book entitled Hikmat-ul-Ishrāq, or 'Philosophy of Inner Light'.² The author of the Dabistān says that the belief of the pure Sūfis is the same as that of the Ishrāqīn or Platonists,³ and also that Sūfis were classed as orthodox (Mutasharrif) and Platonists.⁴ Ḥajī Khalfā, in his article on Sūfism (Tasawwuf), says that anyone who reads Sūfī books cannot fail to remark that their terminology is borrowed from the Platonists (Ishrāqīn), and more especially from the later ones—the Neoplatonists.⁵

It was probably at about the end of the fifth century A.H. that Neoplatonic gnōsis began to influence and modify Sūfī doctrine. Up to that date the doctrine had been expounded in short precepts, parables (mathāl), and similes like those in the Koran. But educated Moslems had outgrown these primitive methods of instruction. They wanted something more systematic. Jalāl-ud-dīn Rūmī tells us how his critics assailed him for dealing in trivial examples and parables instead of giving a systematic account of the stages of the soul's ascent to God.⁶ Ibn Khaldūn mentions Muhāsibī and

¹ Ḥajī Khalfā, iii 479

² Ibn Khaldūn, iv 153. This Shihāb-ud-dīn must not be confounded with his more famous namesake who died at Baghdad in the odour of sanctity in 632 A.H. Ibn Khallikān, ii 382

³ Shea and Troyer's translation, iii 281

⁴ Ibid., ii 374, see also iii 139

⁵ Ḥajī Khalfā, ii 308

⁶ See 'Masnavī,' p 168

the great Imām Ghazzālī as among the first who wrote systematic treatises on the doctrines of the Sūfis¹ We have Ghazzālī's own account of the way in which he was attracted to Sūfism,² and other passages in his writings prove that he used the forms of Greek thought to explain Sūfī principles³ If it be asked how Greek philosophy reached Ghazzālī, who was a native of Khurāsān,⁴ the answer is easy When Justinian closed the schools at Athens, Damascius and his Neoplatonist brethren fled to the court of Nushirvān They only remained there about a year, and left in 533 A D, but Nushirvān had some translations of Neoplatonist books made at the time, and these were followed by many others, made two centuries and a half later, under the Abbasides at Baghdad⁵

Greek philosophy was expounded by the so-called Arabian, but really Persian, philosophers, Al Farābī and Avicena, and afterwards in the *Ikhwān-us-Safā*⁶ Shahrastānī, a contemporary of Ghazzālī, gave accounts of all the chief Greek philosophers, including the 'Shaikh of the Greeks' or Plotinus,⁷ his editor Porphyry and Proklus The so-called 'Theology of Aristotle,' which is a summary of the 'Enneads' of Plotinus,⁸ appeared probably soon afterwards The result was that Neoplatonism, mainly in the form expounded by Plotinus, was used by all the more learned Sūfis to explain and justify the simple emotional sayings of the early Sūfis Henceforward, Neoplatonism pervades all systematic treatises on Sūfism, such as the Fasūs-ul-Hikam, the Maqсад-ul-Aqsā,⁹ the Gulshan i Rāz,¹⁰ and the Lawā'ih Even the poets use the

¹ 'Notices et Extraits des Manuscrits,' xii, pp 301, 302

² See Schmolders, 'Écoles Philosophiques chez les Arabes,' p 55

³ See the passage on 'Tauhīd' given in Appendix I

⁴ Khurāsān was the 'focus of culture,' as Hammer says, and most of the philosophers came from that Eastern province

⁵ Whittaker's 'Neoplatonists,' p 133, and Schmolders, 'Documenta Philosophiæ Arabum' (Bonn, 1836), Introduction

⁶ See Dieterici's 'Die Weltseele' (Leipzig, 1872)

⁷ See Haarbrucker's German translation of Shahrastānī's 'Book of Sects,' ii 192 (Halle, 1850)

⁸ See Dr Bronnle's note, Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society, April, 1901 The book was published with a Latin translation by Petrus Nicolaus in 1518

⁹ The late Professor Palmer published a summary of this book under the title of 'Oriental Mysticism' (Cambridge, 1867)

¹⁰ Edited and translated by me (Trübner, 1880)

Greek terminology Thus Ḥakīm Sanā'ī, who lived at the same time as Ghazzālī, introduces 'Universal Reason' and 'Universal Soul,' the second and third hypostases of the Trinity of Plotinus, and the principal later poets follow suit¹

The first Sūfis differed from ordinary Moslems only in their quietism (taslīm) and their puritan ideal of life They held the orthodox doctrines, with perhaps a few reservations But when Greek influences came into play all these doctrines underwent more or less modification Take the following samples

1 The cardinal doctrine of Islām was altered from Monotheism to Monism 'There is no God but Allah' became 'There is no real Being or real Agent but "The One," "The Truth"' (Al Haqq)

2 God is no longer a supramundane Deity, enthroned above the empyrean heaven, creating the world by one fiat, ruling His subjects, like some mighty monarch, by commands and prohibitions, and paying them wages according to their deserts He has become a Being immanent and 'deeply interfused' in the universe,² and giving it all the real existence it has The Koran speaks of Allah as omniscient, but omniscience was now expanded into 'omni-essence,' if one may use such a word³ And the Plotinian emanation doctrine was borrowed to support this

3 Like all great religious teachers, Muhammad laid chief stress on right conduct, and this consisted in implicit obedience to every one of Allah's commands, as disobedience to any one was sin The distinction between moral laws and com-

¹ Mr Nicholson has brought this out in his 'Dīwānī Shamsī Tabriz' (Cambridge, 1898) For a sketch of the system of Plotinus see Appendix II

² Cp Wordsworth, 'Lines on Tintern Abbey'

'A sense sublime
Of something far more deeply interfused,
Whose dwelling is the light of setting suns,
And the round ocean and the living air,
And the blue sky, and in the heart of man,
A motion and a spirit that impels
All thinking things, all objects of all thought,
And rolls through all things'

³ 'Or omneity,' as Sir Thomas Browne calls it in the 'Religio Medici,' § 35.

mands merely relating to ritual observances was not clearly laid down. It has been said that Islām means 'striving after righteousness'¹ That is so, but righteousness was interpreted as including the scrupulous observance of trivial rules as to ablutions, prayers, fasting, etc.² It may well be doubted if Muhammad is responsible for some of the directions about ritual which are ascribed to him,³ but, be this as it may, more and more importance came to be assigned to the scrupulous observance of these ritual forms. The early Sūfis disliked this externalism, and came to regard all rites as of small account. They thought that the mechanical routine of rites (taqlīd) only served to induce the spiritual torpor, which Dante called 'Accidia'.⁴ St Bernard remarked this result in his monks, but he set it down to the fault of the men, not to that of the system. The Sūfi theologians adopted the Neoplatonist view that the ritual law is not binding upon spiritual men. St Paul held a similar view. Shabistai contrasts the mere outward Islām of ritual observances with the true piety of some heathens, much to the advantage of the latter, and Jalāl-ud-dīn Rūmī declares that 'Fools exalt the Mosque while they ignore the true temple in the heart'.⁵

4 The Koranic doctrine of future rewards and punishments was ultimately refined away. The early Sūfis held very strongly that love to God should be quite disinterested and untainted by hope of reward. They thought 'other-worldliness' no better than worldliness. According to the Sūfi theologians there is no material heaven or hell. When

¹ Surah, lxxii 14, Hirschfeld, p 14, and Suhrawardī's 'Sayings of Muhammad'. Jorjānī defines Islām as unquestioning obedience and submission to Allah's commands ('Notices et Extraits des Manuscrits,' x, p 53)

² See the rules about ablution, etc., in the 'Misḥāt ul Masābih,' translated by Matthews (Calcutta, 1809). Cp Omar Khayyām's 'whimsical complaint,' Quatran 180

³ They seem opposed to the spirit of the text 'Righteousness does not consist in turning to the east or to the west,' etc (Surah, ii 172)

⁴ Purgatory (Canto XVII)

⁵ 'Gulshan i Rāz,' l 877, and 'Masnavī,' p 100, and Introduction, p xxxiv (second edition). But elsewhere (at p 76) Jalāl ud-dīn says forms and symbols are generally needed. In default of some outward and visible sign which they can perceive, men find it hard to conceive the inward spirit

union is attained, asked Shabistānī, 'of what account then will be Paradise and the Houris?'¹ On the other hand, those who lead evil lives would lose by degrees the portion of real being within them, dropping to the level of animals, or even plants, and finally relapsing into non-existence. This result is nowhere clearly stated, but seems implied in the language used, which is, of course, very guarded.²

5 Muhammad had no taste for speculation. He said 'Think on the mercies of God, not on the essence of God.' And again 'Sit not with those who discuss predestination.' His language on predestination is merely popular. In one passage it is that of determinism, in another that of freewill. In one place Allah constrains all, guiding some aright and causing others to err.³ Elsewhere man acts freely without constraint. But the theologians fastened on these obscure problems, and did their best to shift the religious centre of gravity from right conduct to right opinion on these problems. The traditionists fathered on Muhammad various sayings to prove that he regarded orthodoxy on these 'afterthoughts of theology' as all important for salvation. Thus the saying, 'My people shall be split into seventy three sects, all of whom but one shall perish in hell fire,' is one which betrays theological authorship. In Muhammad's lifetime the contest was not with sects within Islām, but with those who denied Islām altogether. For these he had no mercy, but he would scarcely have been so hard on his own people for venial errors of opinion. Again, he could hardly have said, 'Qadarians are Magian (dualists),' at a time when (as is almost certain) no sect of that name had yet arisen.⁴ The early Sūfis did not concern themselves with the disputes of the sects. But the Sūfi theologians could not altogether ignore them. They took sides against the sects which leaned to anthropomorphism, and, on the other hand, fully agreed with the doctrine of the Compulsionists or extreme Predestinationists.⁵ That sect held that God, as the One real Agent,

¹ 'Gulshan i Rāz,' l 701

² See Omar Khayyām (second edition), Appendix, p 358

³ Koran, xvi 38, 39

⁴ The Qadarians would be classed as semi Pelagians by Western theologians

⁵ See 'Gulshan i Rāz,' l 105 and 538

not only permitted evil, but of set purpose allotted evils, present or future, to the majority of mankind. This strange doctrine (which has its parallel in Europe) forced the Sūfī theologians to attempt some reconciliation of Divine power, as thus interpreted, with Divine goodness, and here, like Augustine, they availed themselves of the 'not-being' (adlm) of Plotinus¹

Perhaps, however, the true Sūfī spirit was best interpreted by Jalāl-ud-dīn Rūmī, when he declared that he agreed with all seventy-three sects as being all honest attempts to grasp the obscure truth. Errors in 'naming the names of God' are of small account. According to the Hadīth, 'He who does the works will know the doctrine.' And true love to God atones for all mistakes of doctrine.²

Jāmī is a typical Sūfī theologian. He works hard to construct a reasoned basis for Sūfism, but finally realizes that his logical definitions and syllogisms cannot express the truth as it really is, and add nothing to the grounds on which the convictions of Sūfīs must always rest. It is only by means of the spiritual clairvoyance generated by love that Divine knowledge (ma'rifat) can be attained.³ Those who have these spiritual intuitions do not need demonstrations, and to those who have them not all demonstrations are useless.

6 Muhammad, like Luther, rejected asceticism. Suhrawardī quotes several of his anti-ascetic sayings, including the familiar one, 'There is no monasticism in Islām.' He approved of poverty, it is true, and prescribed a month of fasting, but set his face firmly against the cloistered life and celibacy.⁴ The early Sūfīs were, perhaps, attracted to

¹ See 'Masnavī' (second edition), Introduction, p. xxv, etc., and Flash XXVII in this treatise.

² See the parable of Moses and the shepherd who was faulty in theology, but fervent in spirit ('Masnavī,' p. 82, and also p. 139).

³ See 'Masnavī,' p. 260. Newman ('Apologia,' p. 19) quotes Keble as saying, 'The firmness of assent which we give to religious doctrine is due, not to the probabilities which introduced it, but to the living power of faith and love which accepted it.' This is worked out in Newman's 'Grammar of Assent.'

⁴ See the 'Sayings of Muhammad,' by Suhrawardī (Constable, 1905), Nos. 125, 304, 186, etc.

asceticism by the example of the Christians in Syria, where the first Sūfī convent was built, and Neoplatonist doctrine furnished the rationale of ascetic practice. Matter was evil, and therefore all material and sensuous taint, including the natural instincts (phronēma sarkos), must be purged away and extirpated by all who claimed to be spiritual men¹. Thus a double system of religious conduct was set up—the external law for ordinary men and ‘the counsels of perfection,’ the more perfect way of asceticism and contemplation for spiritual men. The external law of ritual observances had no longer any dominion over spiritual men². This abrogation of the ceremonial law naturally tempted some undisciplined Sūfīs, as it has tempted some professing followers of St. Paul, to laxity in the observance of the moral law. It is needless to say that these antinomian developments were never countenanced by any reputable theologians or teachers, but, on the contrary, were always condemned by them. Still, it cannot be denied that wild enthusiasts and false brethren did occasionally misinterpret Sūfī doctrines in this way, and thus gave some ground for the prejudices of orthodox Moslems against the whole body of Sūfīs.

Harnack, in his ‘History of Dogma,’ has shown how profoundly Christian theology has been affected by Neoplatonist ideas. The disputes about Ousia, Hypostasis, and Physis which rent Christendom asunder³ mainly grew from ‘after-thoughts of theology’ suggested by these ideas, and their influence has extended to our own days⁴. It is hardly too much to say that their influence on the course of events has been as considerable as that of the Roman law. In Islām their influence has been much more restricted than in Christendom, but, such as it was, it is instructive to trace it⁵.

¹ Jalāl-ud-dīn Rūmī, however, takes occasion to warn his disciples that this counsel of perfection is not to be taken too literally. See the parable of the peacock who tore off his plumage to avoid the pursuit of the fowls (‘Masnavī,’ p. 228).

² See ‘Masnavī,’ p. 224.

³ Gibbon’s ‘Decline and Fall,’ chapter xxi.

⁴ ‘Paulus genuit Augustinum et Augustinus genuit Calvinum.’ With Paul should be coupled Plotinus. See Bigg’s ‘Introduction to Augustine’s Confessions’ (Methuen, 1903).

⁵ For a sketch of the system of Plotinus, who is the best exponent of Neoplatonism, see Appendix II.

The manuscript of the Lawā'ih now reproduced is undated, but was probably written within a century of Jāmi's death in 898 A H. It once belonged to the royal library at Delhi, and the outside pages contain notes by the librarians, one of which, dated the twenty-fourth year of Aurangzib, states that it was worm-eaten even then. W H Morley, who also owned it, has noted on the fly leaf his opinion that it is not Jāmi's work, but written by one Sayyid 'Abd-ul Kāfi. This, however, is certainly a mistake. Hājī Khalfā, in his notice of Jāmi's Lawā'ih, quotes the beginning, which agrees with the beginning of this manuscript,¹ and one of the quatrains gives Jāmi's name. The British Museum possesses three copies—viz, Add 16,820 (Rieu, p 44a), Add 16,819, iv (Rieu, p 826b), and Add 7,689, iv, folio 150 onwards (Rieu, p 810b). Copies are to be found in other libraries. In addition to that now reproduced, I possess one, written in an Indian hand, probably in the eighteenth century.²

The facsimile of the manuscript has been made by Messrs Nops, of Ludgate Hill. They have been very successful in removing nearly all traces of the stains and worm-holes in the original, and I think the writer of the manuscript himself, could he see it, would find little fault with their reproduction of his handiwork.

I began the translation some years ago, but, owing to failing eyesight, had to stop after getting to the end of Flash VII. I have now been fortunate enough to secure the assistance of a very competent scholar, Mirzā Muhammad Kazvīnī, who has furnished me with a literal French version of the whole, together with some valuable notes. In his translation the Mirzā has chiefly followed the British Museum Manuscript, Add No 16,819, which contains several passages not found in this manuscript. Most, if not all, of these seem to me to be glosses which have crept into the text, but I have given them in this translation, marking them with square brackets. Up to the end of Flash VII the accompanying translation is that made by me some years ago, with some corrections suggested by the Mīzā's version From the beginning of Flash VIII to the end of the book the translation is the Mirza's French version turned into English by me In this part of the work I have followed the Mīzā closely, only referring to the original to verify a word here and there I am solely responsible for the preface and notes If they contain errors of fact or doctrine, these must not be imputed to the Mīzā

¹ Hājī Khalfā, v 344

² The Munich 'Catalogue,' p 21, mentions a manuscript of the 'Lawā'ih' (sic) with a different beginning

The references to the Gulshan i Rāz are to my edition of that work (Trubner, 1880), those to the Masnavi of Jalāl-ud-dīn Rūmī to my translation of that poem (second edition, published in Trubner's Oriental Series, 1898), those to Omar Khayyām to my text and translation, published in the same series, second edition, 1901

As regards transliteration, I follow the rule laid down long since by the Indian Government, that when foreign words have become naturalized in English they should be spelled according to English usage Thus I write Calcutta, Delhi, Koran, Abbasides, etc Again, when a Persian writer has chosen to transliterate his own name in a particular way, I do not presume to interfere with his discretion I give titles of books as they are spelled on the title-pages, and, like Rieu, I represent Hamza by the 'spiritus lenis' (') With these exceptions I have in the main observed the transliteration rules of the Royal Asiatic Society

E H W

TRANSLATION OF THE LAWA'IH

'I do not render praises unto Thee'¹ How is this, seeing that 'all praise returns to Thee'² The threshold of Thy sanctity is too high for my praises Thou art what Thine own praises declare Thee O Lord, we are not able to tell Thy praises or set forth Thy glories Whatsoever is manifested on the pages of the universe is praise reflected back to the threshold of Thy most glorious Majesty What can faculty or tongue of mine declare worthy of Thy glory and honour? Thou art such as Thou hast Thyself declared, and the pearls of Thy praise are what Thyself hast strung

In the vast largesse of Thy Majesty
This whole world's but a drop from out the sea,
What power have we to celebrate Thy praise?³
No praises save Thine own are meet for Thee!

Where the speaker of the words, 'I am the most eloquent [of the Arabs]',³ lowered the flag of his eloquence, and found himself impotent to render Thee fitting praises, how shall a mere stammerer venture to open his mouth or a dullard deliver an apt discourse? Nevertheless, in this case to excuse one's self on the ground of one's incapacity and deficiencies is itself the gravest of defects, and to put one's self on a level with that prince of the world and of the faith would be a serious breach of propriety.

¹ A saying of Muhammad

² Fluegel (Hajī Khalfā, v 344) translates, 'Quomodo possim?' Cp Surah, xvii 46, 'Neither is there aught which doth not celebrate Thy praise,' and Ps cxlv 10

³ Referring to the saying, 'I am' the most eloquent of those who pronounce the letter Zād (Dzād),' the Arab shibboleth

What am I? Can I count myself the peer
Of the poor dog that's suffered to draw near?
I may not join the caravan—enough
If from afar the camel bells I hear

O Lord, send down Thy blessing upon Muhammad, the standard-bearer of praise and possessor of 'the glorious station,'¹ and upon his family, and upon his companions who through earnest endeavour have succeeded in attaining the goal of their desire, and pour upon them all Thy perfect peace!

SUPPLICATIONS ²

O God, deliver us from preoccupation with worldly vanities, and show us the nature of things 'as they really are'³ Remove from our eyes the veil of ignorance, and show us things as they really are Show not to us non-existence as existent, nor cast the veil of non-existence over the beauty of existence Make this phenomenal world the mirror⁴ to reflect the manifestations of Thy beauty, and not a veil to separate and repel us from Thee Cause these unreal phenomena of the universe to be for us the sources of knowledge and insight, and not the cause of ignorance and blindness Our alienation and severance from Thy beauty all proceed from ourselves Deliver us from ourselves, and accord to us intimate knowledge of Thee

Make my heart pure, my soul from error free,
Make tears and sighs my daily lot to be,
And lead me on Thy road away from self,
That lost to self I may approach to Thee!

Set enmity between the world and me,
Make me averse from worldly company
From other objects turn away my heart,
So that it be engrossed with love to Thee

¹ 'It may be, O Muhammad, that thy Lord will raise thee to a glorious station' (Koran, xvii 81), interpreted to mean, his power of intercession

² The headings are all omitted in this manuscript, but spaces are left, which were probably intended to be filled in with gold lettering.

³ A prayer ascribed to Muhammad See 'Gulshan i Rāz,' p. 21, note 1

⁴ The divine Real Being is reflected in 'Notbeing' ('adm') as in a mirror, and gives it all the reality it possesses See 'Gulshan i Rāz,' p. 14, l 134. This idea comes from Plotinus, 'the Shaikh of the Greeks'

How were it, Lord, if Thou should'st set me free
From error's grasp and cause me truth to see ?

Guebres by scores Thou makest Musulmans,
Why, then, not make a Musulman of me ?

My lust for this world and the next efface,
Grant me the crown of poverty and grace

To be partaker in Thy mysteries,
From paths that lead not towards Thee turn my face

PREFACE

This is a treatise entitled *Lawa'ih*¹ ('Flashes of Light'), explanatory of the intuitions and verities displayed on the pages of the hearts and minds of men of insight and divine knowledge, and of those who enjoy spiritual raptures and ecstasies. It is written in suitable language adorned with pleasing explanations. I trust that readers will hold of no account the personality of the author of this commentary, and will refrain from taking their seats upon the carpet of caviling and animadversion. For the author plays only the part of interpreter in the following discussions, his sole function is that of mouthpiece, and nothing else.

Believe me, I am naught—yea, less than naught
By naught and less than naught what can be taught ?

I tell the mysteries of truth, but know
Naught save the telling to this task I brought.

For poverty to make no sign is best,
On love divine to hold one's peace is best,

For him who never felt ecstatic joys
To play a mere reporter's part is best

With men of light I sought these pearls to string,
The drift of mystics' sayings forth to bring,

Now let his trusty slaves this tribute bear
From foolish me to Hamadān's wise king²

¹ Hajī Khalfā (v, p. 344) says Sayyid Kāseh Karrānī wrote a Persian commentary upon it.

² The person referred to is probably Shāh Manuchahr, Governor of Hamadān, who paid much attention to Jāmī when he visited the town in 877 A.H. See Lee's preface to the 'Nafahāt,' p. 11. Note the pun on 'Hama Dān' ('All knowing'). Amīr Sayyid 'Alī of Hamadan, a Sūfī saint, is mentioned in the 'Nafahāt,' p. 515, but as he died in 786 A.H., it is not likely that Jāmī is speaking of him.

*Flash I*¹

God has not made man with two hearts within him² The Incomparable Majesty who has conferred the boon of existence upon thee has placed within thee but one heart, to the end that with single heart thou mayest love Him alone, and mayest turn thy back on all besides and devote thyself to Him alone, and refrain from dividing thy heart into a hundred portions, each portion devoted to a different object

O votary of earthly idols' fane,
 Why let these veils of flesh enwrap thy brain ?
 'Tis folly to pursue a host of loves,
 A single heart can but one love contain !

Flash II.

Distraction or disunion (Tafriqah) consists in dividing the heart by attaching it to divers objects Union or collected-ness (*jam'yyat*³) consists in forsaking all else and being wholly engrossed in the contemplation of the One Unique Being Those who fancy that collectedness results from the collecting of worldly goods remain in perpetual distraction, whilst those who are convinced that amassing wealth is the cause of distraction renounce all worldly goods

O thou whose heart is torn by lust for all,
 Yet vainly strives to burst these bonds of all,
 This 'all' begets distraction of the heart
 Give up thy heart to ONE and break with all

While thou'rt distraught by hell-born vanity,
 Thou'rt seen by men of union base to be,
 By God, thou art a demon,⁴ and no man,
 Too ignorant thy devilry to see

O pilgrim⁵ on the 'path' vain talk reject,
 All roads save that to Unity neglect,
 Naught but distractedness proceeds from wealth
 Collect thine heart, not store of wealth collect

¹ 'Lā'ihah' These headings, which are found in other manuscripts, are omitted in this, as before remarked

² Koran, xxxiii 4

³ Also 'tranquillity,' 'congregation,' 'totality'

⁴ Nasnās, literally, a fabulous monster, a satyr

⁵ Sālik.

O heart, thy high-prized learning of the schools,
Geometry and metaphysic rules—

Yea, all but lore of God is devils' lore
Fear God and leave this evil lore to fools

Flash III

The 'Truth,' most glorious and most exalted, is omnipresent He knows the outer and inner state of all men in every condition Oh, what a loss will be thine if thou turnest thine eyes from His face to fix them on other objects, and forsake the way that is pleasing to Him to follow other roads !

My Love stood by me at the dawn of day,
And said, 'To grief you make my heart a prey ,
Whilst I am casting looks of love at you,
Have you no shame to turn your eyes away ?

All my life long I tread love's path of pain,
If peradventure 'union' I may gain
Better to catch one moment's glimpse of Thee
Than earthly beauties' love through life retain

Flash IV

Everything other than the 'Truth' (may He be glorified and exalted) is subject to decay and annihilation Its substance is a mental figment with no objective existence, and its form is a merely imaginary entity

Yesterday this universe neither existed nor appeared to exist, while to-day it appears to exist, but has no real existence it is a mere semblance, and to-morrow nothing thereof will be seen What does it profit thee to allow thyself to be guided by vain passions and desires? Why dost thou place reliance on these transitory objects that glitter with false lustre? Turn thy heart away from all of them, and firmly attach it to God Break loose from all these, and cleave closely to Him It is only He who always has been and always will continue to be The countenance of His eternity is never scared by the thorn of contingency

The fleeting phantoms you admire to-day
 Will soon at Heaven's behest be swept away
 O give your heart to Him who never fails,
 Who's ever with you and will ever stay
 When to fair idols' shrines I did repair,
 I vexed my heart with griefs encountered there ,
 Now earthly beauty has lost all its charm,
 Eternal beauty is my only care
 Things that abide not to eternity
 Expose thee to misfortune's battery ,
 In this life, then, sever thyself from all
 From which thy death is bound to sever thee
 Perchance with wealth and sons endowed thou art
 Yet with all these erelong thou'lt have to part
 Thrice happy he who gives his heart to ONE,
 And sets affection on the men of heart.

Flash V.

The Absolute Beauty is the Divine Majesty endued with [the attributes of] power and bounty Every beauty and perfection manifested in the theatre of the various grades of beings is a ray of His perfect beauty reflected therein. It is from these rays that exalted souls have received their impress of beauty and their quality of perfection¹ Whosoever is wise derives his wisdom from the Divine wisdom. Wherever intelligence is found it is the fruit of the Divine intelligence. In a word, all are attributes of Deity which have descended from the zenith of the Universal and Absolute to the nadir of the particular and relative [They have descended] to the end that thou mayest direct thy course from the part towards the Whole, and from the relative deduce the Absolute, and not imagine the part to be distinct from the Whole, nor be so engrossed with what is merely relative as to cut thyself off from the Absolute.

The Loved One's rose-parterre I went to see,
 That beauty's Torch² espied me, and, quoth He,
 'I am the tree, these flowers My offshoots are Let not these offshoots hide from thee the tree.'

¹ Spenser in the 'Hymn of Heavenly Love' expresses the same idea, which comes from Plato

² Literally, 'Torch of Tirāz,' a town in Turkestān famed for its beautiful women.

What profit rosy cheeks, forms full of grace,
 And ringlets clustering round a lovely face ?
 When Beauty Absolute beams all around,
 Why linger finite beauties to embrace ?

Flash VI

Man, in regard to his corporeal nature, stands at the lowest point of degradation, nevertheless, in regard to his spiritual nature, he is at the summit of nobility. He takes the impress of every thing to which he directs his attention, and assumes the colour of every thing to which he approaches. Wherefore philosophers say that when the reasonable soul adorns itself with exact and faithful impressions of realities, and appropriates to itself the true character of such realities, it becomes such as if it were itself altogether essential Being. In like manner the vulgar, by the force of their conjunction with these material forms and extreme preoccupation with these corporeal liens, come to be such that they cannot distinguish themselves from these forms or perceive any difference between the two. Well says the Maulavī of Rūm (may God sanctify his secret) in the Masnavī -

O brother, thou art wholly thought,
 For the rest of thee is only bone and muscle
 If thy thought be a rose, thou art a rose-bouquet,
 If it be a thorn, thou art fuel for the fire

Wherefore it behoves thee to strive and hide thyself from thy sight,¹ and occupy thyself with Very Being, and concern thyself with the 'Truth'. For the various grades of created things are theatres of His revealed beauty, and all things that exist are mirrors of his perfections.

And in this course thou must persevere until He mingles Himself with thy soul, and thine own individual existence passes out of thy sight. Then, if thou regardest thyself, it is He whom thou art regarding, if thou speakest of thyself, it is He of whom thou art speaking. The relative has become the Absolute, and 'I am the Truth' is equivalent to 'He is the Truth'.²

¹ Variant, 'hide thyself from the sight of the world'

² The saying of Mansūr ʿHallāj (or Ibn Hallāj), the Sūfī martyr

If love of rose or bulbul fill thine heart,
 Thyself a rose or eager bulbul art
 Thou art a part, the 'Truth' is all in all
 Dwell on the 'Truth,' and cease to be a part

Of my soul's union with this fleshly frame,
 Of life and death Thou art the end and aim
 I pass away, Thou only dost endure
 When I say 'me,' 'tis Thee I mean to name¹

When will this mortal dress be torn away,
 And Beauty Absolute His face display,
 Merging my soul in His resplendent light,
 Blinding my heart with His o'erpowering ray?

Flash VII

It is necessary for thee to habituate thyself to this intimate relation in such wise that at no time and in no circumstance thou mayest be without the sense of it, whether in coming or in going, in eating or sleeping, in speaking or listening. In short, thou must ever be on the alert both when resting and when working, not to waste thy time in insensibility [to this relation]—nay, more, thou must watch every breath, and take heed that it goeth not forth in negligence

The years roll on, Thou showest not Thy face,
 Yet nothing from my breast Thy love can chase,
 Thine image ever dwells before mine eyes,
 And in my heart Thy love aye holds its place

Flash VIII.

In like manner, as it behoves thee to maintain the said relation continually, so it is of the first importance to develop the quality thereof by detaching thyself from mundane relations and by emancipating thyself from attention to contingent forms, and this is possible only through hard striving and earnest endeavour to expel vain thoughts and imaginations from thy mind. The more these thoughts are cast out and these suggestions checked, the stronger and closer this relation becomes. It is, then, necessary to use every endeavour to force these thoughts to encamp outside the enclosure of thy breast, and that the 'Truth' most glorious may cast His beams into thy heart, and deliver thee from thyself, and save thee from the trouble of entertaining His rivals in thy heart. Then there will abide with thee neither consciousness of thyself, nor even consciousness of such absence of consciousness¹—nay, there will abide nothing save the One God alone.

¹ Compare the story of the Sūfī aspirant who was refused admittance by his Pir till he ceased to speak of 'me' and called himself 'thee' ('Masnavī,' p 47)

From my brute nature,² Lord, deliver me,
And from this life of evil set me free,
Purge me of my own sense and ignorance,
And make me lose my very self in Thee

When poor indeed and dead to self thou'lt need
No visions, knowledge, certitude, or creed,
When self has perished naught but God remains,
For 'Perfect poverty is God indeed'³

Flash IX

Self-annihilation consists in this, that through the overpowering influence of the Very Being upon the inner man, there remains no consciousness of aught beside Him. Annihilation of annihilation consists in this, that there remains no consciousness even of that unconsciousness. It is evident that annihilation of annihilation is involved in [the very notion of] annihilation. For if he who has attained annihilation should retain the least consciousness of his annihilation, he would not be in the state of annihilation, because the quality of annihilation and the person possessing such quality are both things distinct from the Very Being, the 'Truth' most glorious. Therefore, to be conscious of annihilation is incompatible with annihilation.⁴

¹ See the passage from Ghazzālī in Appendix III.

² Dadī, brutishness. Some manuscripts read durwī, disease, but this does not suit the rhyme, which in verses with a burden (radīf) always precedes it. Scan dādīyā, dissolving long ī and lengthening the izāfat.

³ Seemingly a Hadīth. Poverty, utter annihilation of self ('Gulshan 1 Rāz,' l 128, and note).

⁴ So Ghazzālī, quoted in Appendix III.

While fondness for your 'self' you still retain,
 You'll not reduce its bulk a single grain—
 Yea, while you feel one hair's-breadth of yourself
 Claims to annihilation are but vain

Flash X

Unification¹ consists in unifying the heart—that is to say, in purifying it and expelling from it attachment to all things other than the 'Truth' most glorious, including not only desire and will, but also knowledge and intelligence. In fact, one must quench desire of all things hitherto desired, and cease to will what one has hitherto willed, and also remove from the intellectual vision all concepts and all cognitions, and turn away the mind from all things whatsoever, so that there remains no consciousness or cognition of aught save the 'Truth' most glorious. [Khawāja 'Abdullāh Ansārī said 'Unification is not merely believing Him to be One, but in thyself being one with Him.'²

'Oneness' in pilgrims' phraseology
 Is from concern with 'other' to be free,
 Learn, then, the highest 'station' of the birds,³
 If language of the birds be known to thee'

Flash XI

So long as a man remains imprisoned in the snare of passions and lusts, it is hard for him to maintain this close communion [with the 'Truth']. But from the moment that sweet influence takes effect on him, expelling from his mind the firebrand of vain imaginations and suggestions, the pleasure he experiences therefrom predominates over bodily pleasures and intellectual enjoyments. Then the painful sense of effort passes away, and the joys of contemplation

¹ Tauhīd is the Henōsis of Plotinus, the becoming one with the 'One'

² This sentence occurs only in the British Museum copy, Add 16 819 Khawāja 'Abdullāh Ansārī of Herāt, who died 481 A.H., was named the Shaikh of Islām, and is often quoted by Jāmī in the 'Nafahāt'. See Hajī Khalfa, i, 285

³ Alluding to the 'Discourse of the Birds and their Pilgrimage to the Simurgh,' by Farīd-ud dīn 'Attār. 'Other' the Heterotēs of Plotinus take possession of his mind, he banishes from his heart all alien distractions, and with the tongue of ecstasy murmurs this canticle

Like bulbul I'm inebriate with Thee,¹
 My sorrows grow from memories of Thee,
 Yet all earth's joys are dust beneath the feet
 Of those entrancing memories of Thee

Flash XII

When the true aspirant perceives in himself the beginnings of this Divine attraction, which consists in experiencing pleasure whenever he thinks of the 'Truth' most glorious, he ought to exert all his endeavours to develop and strengthen this experience, and simultaneously to banish whatever is incompatible therewith. He ought to know, for instance, that even though he should employ an eternity in cultivating this communion, that would count as nothing, and he would not have discharged his duty as he ought.

On my soul's lute a chord was struck by Love,
 Transmuting all my being into love,
 Ages would not discharge my bounden debt
 Of gratitude for one short hour of love

Flash XIII

The essence of the 'Truth' most glorious and most exalted is nothing but Being. His² Being is not subject to defect or diminution. He is untouched by change or variation, and is exempt from plurality and multiplicity. He transcends all manifestations, and is unknowable and invisible. Every 'how' and 'why' have made their appearance through Him, but in Himself He transcends every 'how' and 'why'. Everything is perceived by Him, while he is beyond perception. The out-

¹ So in the Stabat Mater

'Fac me cruce inebriari'

² I prefer to emphasize the religious rather than the philosophic and abstract aspect of the 'Truth,' and therefore use the personal pronoun. Thus, the 'Ideal Good' of Plato's 'Republic,' Book VI, is spoken of as 'God' in the 'Timæus'. Just so 'To Kurion' has changed into 'Dominus' in the Western version of the Nicene Creed

ward eye is too dull to behold His beauty, and the eye of the heart is dimmed by the contemplation of His perfection

Thou, for whose love I've sacrificed existence,
Art, yet art not, the sum of earth's existence,
Earth lacks true Being, yet depends thereon—
Thou art true Being Thou art pure existence

The Loved One is quite colourless,¹ O heart
Be not engrossed with colours, then, O heart
All colours come from what is colourless,
And 'who can dye so well as God,'² O heart?

Flash XIV

By the word 'existence'³ is sometimes meant simply the state of being or existing, which is a generic concept or an abstract idea. Taken in this sense, 'existence' is an 'idea of the second intention,'⁴ which has no external object corresponding with it. It is one of the accidents of the 'quidity'⁵ [or real nature of the thing] which exists only in thought, as has been proved by the reasonings of scholastic theologians and philosophers. But sometimes 'existence' signifies the Real Being, who is Self-existent, and on whom the existence of all other beings depends, and in truth there is no real external existence beside Him—all other beings are merely accidents accessory to Him, as is attested by the intuitive apprehension of the most famous Gnostics and 'Men of Certitude'. The word ['existence'] is applicable to the 'Truth' most glorious in the latter sense only.

Things that exist to men of narrow view
Appear the accidents to substance due,
To men of light substance is accident,
Which the 'True Being' ever doth renew.⁶

¹ Birangī. Absence of visible or knowable qualities.

² Koran, ii 132.

³ Wagūd, usually 'necessary being' as opposed to 'contingent'. Jāmī wrote a treatise on it, quoted in the 'Dabistān,' chapter xii.

⁴ Ma'qūlāt ṭhānīyah. In scholastic terminology terms of the second intention are those which express abstractions from concrete individual objects—e.g., genus, species, etc. Rabelais made fun of this term 'Utrum chimæra bombinans in vacuo comedere possit secundas intentiones?'

⁵ Quidity, what a thing is, a word derived by the Schoolmen from māhīyat. See Schmöldeis, 'Documenta Philosophiæ Arabum,' p 183.

⁶ 'In Him we live and move and have our being' (Acts xvii 28).

Flash XV

The attributes are distinct from the Real Being in thought, but are identical with Him in fact and reality. For instance, the Real Being is omniscient in respect of His quality of knowledge, omnipotent in respect of His power, absolute in respect of His will. Doubtless, just as these attributes are distinct from each other in idea, according to their respective meanings, so they are distinct from the Real Being, but in fact and reality they are identical with Him. In other words, there are not in Him many existences, but only one sole existence, and His various names and attributes are merely His modes and aspects.

Pure is Thy essence from deficiency,
Expressed its 'how' and 'where' can never be,
Thy attributes appear distinct, but are
One with Thy essence in reality

Flash XVI.

The Real Being, quid Being, is above all names and attributes, and exempt from all conditions and relations. The attribution to Him of these names only holds good in respect of His aspect towards the world of phenomena. In the first manifestation, wherein He revealed Himself, of Himself, to Himself, were realized the attributes of Knowledge, Light, Existence and Presence. Knowledge involved the power of knowing and that of being known, Light implied those of manifesting and of being manifest, Existence and Presence entailed those of causing to exist and of being existent, and those of beholding and of being beheld. And thus the manifestation which is a characteristic of Light is preceded by concealment, and concealment, by its very nature, has the priority over, and is antecedent to, manifestation, hence the concealed and the manifested are counted as first and second.

And in like manner in the case of the second and third manifestations, etc., as long as it pleases God to continue them, these conditions and relations always go on redoubling, themselves The more these are multiplied, the more complete is His manifestation, or rather His concealment Glory be to Him who hides Himself by the manifestations of His light, and manifests Himself by drawing a veil over His face His concealment has regard to His pure and absolute Being, while His manifestation has regard to the exhibition of the world of phenomena

‘O fairest rose,¹ with rosebud mouth,’ I sighed,
 ‘Why, like coquettes, thy face for ever hide?’
 He smiled, ‘Unlike the beauties of the earth,
 Even when veiled I still may be descried’

Thy face uncovered would be all too bright,
 Without a veil none could endure the sight,
 What eye is strong enough to gaze upon
 The dazzling splendour of the fount of light?

When the sun’s banner blazes in the sky
 Its light gives pain by its intensity,
 But when ’tis tempered by a veil of cloud
 That light is soft and pleasant to the eye

Flash XVII.

The first Epiphany² is a pure unity and a simple potentiality, which contains all potentialities, including not only that of being unconditioned by modes and qualities, but also that of being conditioned thereby Viewed as unconditioned by modes and qualities, including even the potentiality of being thus unconditioned, it is the stage termed ‘Unity’, and so possesses Concealment, Priority, and Existence from eternity On the other hand, when viewed as conditioned by modes and qualities, it is the stage termed ‘Singleness,’ and in this aspect it is marked by Manifestation, Posteriority, and Duration to all eternity Among these modes of the stage ‘Singleness,’ some are such that the qualification of the One

¹ Cp ‘Rosa mystica’ in the Litany of the Virgin Jalāl-ud-dīn Rūmī apologizes for applying such terms to God (‘Masnavī,’ p 34)

² Ta’ayyun The first Emmanation is ‘Unity’ with the ‘Truth’ as being His image and mind (Logos endiathetos), but when evolved to view (Logos prophorikos), and as the channel of Being downwards, it is ‘Unity’ with a difference, which is sought to be expressed by the term ‘Singleness’ (Wāḥidīyat instead of Aḥadīyat)

Being by them has regard to the stage called the 'Whole,'¹ whether they imply the realization in the universe of things corresponding to the names 'Creator' and 'Sustainer,' etc, or merely attributes, such as Life, Knowledge, and Will. This is the class of attributes which pertain to the Divinity and the Sovereignty. The forms under which the One Real Being is conceived, when clothed with these names and attributes, are the 'divine substances.'² The clothing of the outward aspect of Being with these forms does not necessitate multiplicity of beings. Other modes are such that the qualification of the One Real Being by them has relation to the various grades of 'mundane existences,'³ as, for instance, Difference, Property,⁴ and the phenomena which distinguish external objects from one another. The forms under which the One Real Being is conceived, when clothed with these modes, are 'the mundane substances,'⁵ and the clothing of the outward aspect of Being with these forms does necessitate a multiplicity of beings. Among these mundane substances, some are such that when Being, considered in the stage of the 'Unity of the Whole,'⁷ is interfused in them, and His effects and properties manifest themselves therein, these substances have the potentiality of being theatres exhibiting all the Divine names—save those peculiar to the Divine Essence—according to the varying strength of the manifestations, which may be powerful or feeble, irresistible or defeasible. These are the perfect individuals of the human race—to wit, prophets and saints. Others again, are such that they have the potentiality of being theatres exhibiting only some of the

¹ Marātib i Jam' The second emanation, Universal Soul, which comprehends in itself all particular souls, rational, animal, and vegetive. This Aristotelian doctrine of the soul became a commonplace of the schools, and is referred to by Milton, Dryden, etc.

² Substance is quod substat—i.e., the reality underlying sensible phenomena. Haqūq i ilāhīya

³ I.e., the first stage of His revelation

⁴ Marātib i kaunīya.

⁵ Difference, property, accident, genus, and species, are the five heads under which Aristotle classed the general terms capable of being used as predicates.

⁶ Haqūq i kaunīya

⁷ Aḥādīyat i Jam' This is the second emanation (see Flash XXIV) It is usually called nafs i kull, or Universal Soul

Divine names, and not all of them, according to the aforesaid varying strength of the manifestation. These are the rest of the human race.

The Majesty of the One Real Being, viewed under the aspect of the 'Unity of the Whole,' which comprehends all His modes, both Divine and mundane,¹ is for ever immanent in all these substances, and manifesting Himself in them. These substances are the parts of the whole Unity, whether they exist in the world of spirits or in that of 'ideas,'² in the sensible and visible world, in the world that now is, or in that which is to come. The final Cause³ of all this process is the realization or manifestation of the perfection of the Divine names, which is termed jalā and istijlā. Jalā signifies their outward manifestation according to their various modes, and istijlā their display to the Deity Himself, according to these same modes. Jalā is a visible and intelligible manifestation or representation, just as the whole is represented by its parts. Contrariwise, the perfection of the Divine Essence, is the manifestation of the One Real Being to Himself, for Himself, without relation to anything beside Himself. This is a secret and intelligible manifestation.

Absolute self-sufficiency is a quality involved in Divine Perfection. It signifies this, that in a general and universal manner all the modes, states, and aspects of the One Real Being with all their adherent properties and qualities, in all their presentations, past, present or future, manifested in all grades of substances, Divine and mundane, are present and realized in the secret thought of that Divine Being, in such wise that the sum of them all is contained in His Unity. From this point of view He is independent of all other existences, as it is said, 'God most glorious can do without the world.'⁴

¹ I.e., plurality summed up in Unity.

² The world of 'ideas' is the Platonic 'intelligible' world of ideas or archetypes, apprehended only by Reason (nous), as opposed to the 'sensible' world of phenomena apprehended by the senses—'ālam & 'alimī' as opposed to 'ālam & 'alimī'.

³ In Aristotle's language the end (telos) of a thing is its 'final cause'—i.e., the reason of its existence.

⁴ Koran, xxix 5.

The robe of Love is independent, free
 From need to soil with dust its purity,
 When Actor and Spectator are the same
 What means this 'we' and 'thou'? There is no 'we' ¹

All modes and attributes of Very Being
 Are realized and present in that Being,
 To see them He needs not contingent beings ²
 'Tis the contingent needs the Very Being

He needs not to see good and ill set out,
 The One needs not to count its numbers out, ³
 The Truth can view all things within Himself,
 What need, then, to review them all without?

Flash XVIII

When you abstract the appearances and characteristics of the individuals which constitute the various species included in the genus 'animal,' ¹ the individuals are gathered up into their respective species. When, again, you abstract the characteristics of each species, i.e., then 'differences' and 'properties,' all such species are gathered up into the reality of the genus 'animal.' Again, when you abstract the characteristics of the genus 'animal,' and those of all other genera included in the higher genus 'growing body,' all such genera coalesce under that genus, 'growing body.' So when you abstract the characteristics of 'growing body,' and all other genera included along with it under the higher genus 'body,' all such genera are united in the reality of the genus 'body.' Furthermore, when you abstract the characteristics of 'body' and those of all other genera included therewith in

¹ Cp Omai Khayyām, Quatrains 475, and 'Gulshan-i-Rūz,' p. 15, l. 143. 'He [God] is at once seer and thing seen.'

² Contingent being is opposed to necessary being. It is, so to speak, unreal matter permeated with Real Being. 'It thus is, and is not, and partakes both of existence and of non-existence,' as Jowett says.

³ So Mansur-i-Ilāhī. 'The numbers of Unity are only the counting of Unity.'

⁴ The controversy of realism and nominalism raged among Moslems as well as among European Schoolmen (see Schmolders, 'Documenta,' etc., p. 3). Jāmī was evidently a realist. He holds genus and similar general terms to be actual realities (ma'nī), and not mere names. The whole argument in this section rests on the assumption that these genera are real entities.

the higher genus 'substance,' to wit, the 'intelligences' and 'souls,' all such genera will be united in the reality of the higher genus 'substance', so when you abstract the characteristics distinctive of 'substance' and 'accident,' these two genera are united into the [reality of the genus] 'contingent' Finally, when you abstract the characteristic distinctions of 'contingent' and 'necessary,' these two are united in the 'Absolute Existence,' which is the veritable Being, existing of Himself, and not through another being beyond Himself Necessity is His external quality, and 'Contingency' His internal quality—i e, they are the 'archetypal ideas'¹ generated by His self-revelation to Himself when assuming His 'modes'

All these distinctions, whether called 'difference' and 'property' or 'appearances' and 'characteristics,' are 'Divine Modes,' contained and involved in the 'Unity of the One Real Being' First, these modes are represented under the form of the 'archetypal ideas' in the stage called the 'Divine Thought' (or knowledge),² in the next place, in the stage of the 'sensible world,' when clothed with the properties and attributes of external existence—which is the theatre of manifestation, a mirror reflecting the inner Divine Being—these modes assume the forms of external objects

It follows, therefore, that in the external world there is only One Real Being, who, by clothing Himself with different modes and attributes, appears to be endued with multiplicity and plurality to those who are confined in the narrow prison of the 'stages,' and whose view is limited to visible properties and results

Creation's book I studied from my youth,
And every page examined, but in sooth
I never found therein aught save the 'Truth,'
And attributes that appertain to 'Truth'

¹ A yūn ʾi thūbitah, the 'Ideas' of Plato's 'Intelligible World,' the archetypes or patterns of all things in the external and 'sensible world' In the system of Plotinus these ideas are all contained in the first emanation, reason (nous) Jāmi expresses 'intelligible world' by 'ālam ʾi ʿilm, and 'sensible world' by 'ālam ʾi ann'

² Marṭaba ʾi ʿilm, i e, 'ʿaql ʾi ḥull, nous, or Logos, the first epiphany or emanation

What mean Dimension, Body, Species,
 In Mineral, Plant, Animal degrees?
 The 'Truth' is single, but His modes beget
 All these imaginary entities

Flash XIX.

When one says that the multiplicity of things is comprehended in the Unity of the One Real Being, this does not mean that they are the parts contained in an aggregate, or as objects contained in a receptacle, but that they are as the qualities inherent in the object qualified or as consequences flowing from their cause. Take, for instance, the half, the third, the fourth, and other fractions up to infinity, which are potentially¹ contained in the integer, one, though not actually manifested until they are exposed to view by repeating the various numbers and fractions.

It follows from this that when one says that the 'Truth' most gloriously comprehends all beings, the meaning is that He comprehends them as a cause comprehends its consequences, not that He is a whole containing them as His parts, or as a vase containing things within it. God is too exalted above everything which is unworthy to touch the threshold of His holiness.²

These modes³ are in the essence of the 'Truth',
 Like qualities which qualify the 'Truth',
 But part and whole, container and contained,
 Exist not where God is, Who is the 'Truth'.

Flash XX

The manifestation or concealment of the modes and facets—in other words, the circumstance that the outward aspect of Being does or does not clothe Himself with them—causes no change in the 'substance' of such Being or in His essential attributes, but only a change in His connections and relations, which, in fact, necessitates no change in His essence. For instance, if 'Amr gets up from the right of Zaid and goes and sits down on his left, the relation of Zaid to 'Amr in respect to position will be changed, but his essence and his inherent qualities will remain unchanged.

¹ Potentiality and actuality are two of Aristotle's forms of thought, dunamis and energeia (qūwat and fi'l).

² God pervades everything, but everything is not God. Thus the strict Monism of some previous statements is considerably toned down.

³ Shā'n. The 'Modalists' used the term 'modes' to indicate differences of form appearing in the One Substance (Harnack 'On Dogma,' iii 58), and thus to avoid ditheism.

Thus, the One Real Being underlying all outward existence does not become more perfect by clothing Himself with noble forms, nor does He degrade Himself by manifestation in inferior theatres. Although the light of the sun illuminates at once the clean and the unclean, yet it undergoes no modifications in the purity of its light, it acquires neither the scent of musk nor the colour of the rose, the reproach of the thorn nor the disgrace of the rugged rock.

When the sun sheds his light for all to share,
It shines on foul things equally with fair,

Fair things do not augment its radiance,
Nor can foul things its purity impair

Flash XXI

The Absolute does not exist without the relative, and the relative is not formulated without the Absolute, but the relative stands in need of the Absolute, while the Absolute has no need of the relative. Consequently, the necessary connection of the two is mutual, but the need is on one side only, as in the case of the motion of a hand holding a key, and that of the key thus held.

O Thou whose sacred precincts none may see,
Unseen Thou makest all things seen to be,

Thou and we are not separate, yet still
Thou hast no need of us, but we of Thee

Moreover, the Absolute requires a relative of some sort, not one particular relative, but any one that may be substituted for it. Now, seeing that there is no substitute for the Absolute, it is the Absolute alone who is the 'Qibla' of the needs of all relatives.

None by endeavour can behold Thy face,
 Or access gain without preventient grace,¹
 For every man some substitute is found,
 Thou hast no peer, and none can take Thy place

Of accident or substance Thou hast naught,
 Without constraint of cause Thy grace is wrought,
 Thou canst replace what's lost, but if Thou'rt lost,
 In vain a substitute for Thee is sought

It is in regard to His essence that the Absolute has no need of the relative. In other respects the manifestation of the names of His Divinity and the realization of the relations of His Sovereignty are clearly impossible otherwise than by means of the relative

In me Thy beauty love and longing wrought
 Did I not seek Thee how could'st Thou be sought?
 My love is as a mirror in the which Thy beauty into evidence is brought

Nay, what is more, it is the 'Truth' who is Himself at once the lover and the beloved, the seeker and the sought. He is loved and sought in His character of the 'One who is all',² and He is lover and seeker when viewed as the sum of all particulars and plurality.³

O Lord, none but Thyself can fathom Thee,
 Yet every mosque and church doth harbour Thee,
 I know the seekers and what 'tis they seek—
 Seekers and sought are all comprised in Thee

Flash XXII.

The substance of each individual thing may be described either as the epiphany of Very Being⁴ in the 'intelligible world,' according to the particular facet whereof such thing is the monsternce, or as Very Being Himself made manifest immediately,⁵ in the same intelligible world and according to the same facets. Consequently, each existing thing is either

¹ Farz & azal

² Maqūm & Jam' & Ahādīyat Note the change of phrase

³ Maṭaba & tafsīl wa kīlīyat

⁴ Ta'ayyūn & wayūd

⁵ Wayūd & muta'ayyūn

an epiphany of Very Being with the colour imparted to its exterior by the particular properties of its substance, or the Very Being Himself immediately made manifest with the same colouring

The real substance of everything always abides, though concealed in the inner depth of the Very Being, while its sensible properties are manifest to outward sense. For it is impossible that the Divine 'Ideas'¹ in the intelligible world should be susceptible of evanescence, so that would involve atheism. [God is too exalted for such evanescence to be ascribed to His 'Ideas']²

We are the facets and the modes of Being Evolved from Mind³—yea, accidents of Being,
 We're hidden in the cloak of non-existence,
 But yet reflected in the glass of Being⁴

⁵[Consequently, everything is in reality and in fact either Being made manifest or an accident of Being thus manifested. The manifested accident is a quality of the manifested Being, and though in idea the quality is different from the thing qualified, yet in fact it is identical with it. Notwithstanding the difference in idea, the identity in fact justifies the attribution⁶

In neighbour, friend, companion, Him we see,
 In beggar's rags or robes of royalty,
 In Union's cell or in Distraction's haunts,⁷
 There's none but He—by God, there's none but He⁸]

Flash XXIII

Although the Very Being underlying all existence communicates Himself to all beings, both those in the intelligible and those in the sensible world, yet He does so in different

¹ Suwar i 'ilmīya

² Blank left as usual for the Arabic sentence

³ I e, the 'Ālam i 'ilm', the intelligible world of the Divine 'Ideas'

⁴ Plotinus and the 'Gulshan i Rāz' make not being the mirror of Very Being. Jāmī here inverts the metaphor

⁵ The following passage omitted in this text. It is probably a gloss which has crept into some manuscripts

⁶ Hamī, affirming a predicate of a subject

⁷ See Flash II

⁸ So 'Gulshan i Rāz,' l 883 'See but One, say but One, know but One' degrees [some superior to others] And in each of these degrees He has certain names, attributes, and modes, applicable to that particular degree and not to the others, e g, the names Divinity and Sovereignty [are not applicable] to the degrees called Subordination and the Creature-state Consequently, to apply the names 'Allah' and 'the Merciful,' etc, to created beings is sheer infidelity and heresy And, similarly, to apply the names suitable to grades of created things to the Deity is the height of misconception and delusion

O you who deem yourself infallible,
In certitude a very oracle,¹
Each grade of beings has its proper name
Mark this, or you'll become an infidel²

Flash XXIV

The Real Being is One alone, at once the true Existence and the Absolute But He³ possesses different degrees

In the first degree He is unmanifested and unconditioned, and exempt from all limitation or relation. In this aspect He cannot be described by epithets or attributes, and is too holy to be designated by spoken or written words, neither does tradition furnish an expression for His Majesty, nor has reason the power to demonstrate the depth of His perfection The greatest philosophers are baffled by the impossibility of attaining to knowledge of Him, His first characteristic is the lack of all characteristics, and the last result of the attempt to know Him is stupefaction⁴

To you convictions and presumptions wrought
By evidence intuitive are naught,
How can one prove your own reality
To such as you who count all proofs as naught?
However great our heavenly knowledge be,
It cannot penetrate Thy sanctuary,
Saints blest with visions and with light divine
Reach no conceptions adequate to Thee

¹ Siddiq, veracious, like Abu Bakr 'as-Siddiq'

² Zundiq

³ See note 2, p 27

⁴ Harānī In the 'Mantiq ut-Tair,' Harat is the last valley in the Sūfī pilgrim's progress To know God he must rise to ecstasy

Our love,¹ the special grace of souls devout,
 To reason seems a thing past finding out,
 Oh, may it bring the dawn of certitude,
 And put to flight the darksome hours of doubt !

The second degree is the self-display of Very Being in an epiphany containing in itself all the active, necessary and divine manifestations, as well as all the passive, contingent and mundane manifestations. This degree is named the 'First Emanation,'² because it is the first of all the manifestations of the Very Being, and above it there is no other degree than that of the 'Unmanifested'

The third degree is named the 'Unity of the Whole Aggregate,'³ which contains in itself all the active and efficient manifestations. It is named the degree of 'Divinity'⁴

The fourth degree is the manifestation in detail of the degree named Divinity, it is the degree of the names and the theatres wherein they are manifested. These two last-named degrees refer to the outward aspect of Being wherein 'necessity'⁵ is a universal condition.

The fifth degree is the 'Unity of the Whole Aggregate,' which includes all the passive manifestations whose characteristic is the potentiality of receiving impressions, i e, passivity. It is the degree of mundane existence and contingency.⁶

The sixth degree is the manifestation in detail of the preceding degree, it is the degree of the sensible world.⁷ These two last degrees refer to the exterior of the intelligible world,⁸ wherein contingency is one of the invariable qualities

¹ Rūmī describes love as spiritual clairvoyance. See 'Masnavī, Introduction, p xxviii

² Ta'ayyun i awwal, usually called 'aql i kull, universal reason—i e, nous or Logos, as by Jāmī himself in 'Salāman wa Absal'. 'The first thing created was reason' (Hadith)

³ Aḥadiyyat i Jamī, usually called nafs i kull, universal soul, pneuma

⁴ Ilāhiyyat. See De Sacy's note in 'Notices et Extraits des Manuscrits,' x 77

⁵ Waḥd. It belongs to the sphere of 'Necessary Being'

⁶ Martaba i kaunīya i imkūniya

⁷ 'Ālam

⁸ The object of this distinction is to keep God from contact with matter. Contingency is not found in the immediate reflections of Being, but only in the reflections from the intelligible world of Divine Ideas

It consists of the revelation of the Divine Mind to Himself under the forms of the substances of the contingent

Consequently, in reality there is but One Sole Being, who is interfused in all these degrees and hierarchies which are only the details of the Unity ('Singleness')¹ 'Very Being' in these degrees is identical with them, just as these degrees when they were in the Very Being were identical therewith ['God was, and there was not anything with Him.']²

The 'Truth' appears in all, would'st thou divine
How with Himself He doth all things combine?

See the wine-froth the wine in froth is froth,
Yet the froth on the wine is very wine

'Tis the bright radiance of Eternity

That lights Not-being, as we men may see,

Deem not the world is severed from the 'Truth'
In the world He's the world, in Him 'tis He

Flash XXV

The 'Truth of truths' which is the essential, most exalted Divine Being is the Reality in all things. He is One in Himself, and 'unique' in such wise that plurality cannot enter into Him, but by His multiple revelations and numerous phenomenal displays He is sometimes presented under the form of substantial independent entities,³ and at other times under the form of accidental and dependent entities⁴. Consequently, the One Essential Being appears as multiple by reason of the numerous qualities of these substances and accidents, although in point of fact He is 'One,' and is in no wise susceptible of numbers or plurality

Raise the words 'this' and 'that', duality
Denotes estrangement and repugnancy,

In all this fair and faultless universe
Naught but one Substance and one Essence sec⁵

¹ Wāḥidīyat See note 2, p 30

² A saying attributed to Muhammad. A blank is left for it in this manuscript

³ Ḥaqāʾiq ʿi Jawharīya ʿi maṭbūʿa

⁴ Ḥaqāʾiq ʿi ʿarazīya ʿi fāʾiʿi

⁵ See note 8, p 38

This unique Substance, viewed as absolute and void of all phenomena, all limitations and all multiplicity, is the 'Truth'. On the other hand, viewed in His aspect of multiplicity and plurality, under which He displays Himself when clothed with phenomena, He is the whole created universe. Therefore the universe is the outward visible expression of the 'Truth,' and the 'Truth' is the inner unseen reality of the universe. The universe before it was evolved to outward view was identical with the 'Truth', and the 'Truth' after this evolution is identical with the universe. Nay, more, in reality there is but One Real Being, His concealment [in the Divine Mind] and His manifestation [in the sensible world], His priority and His posteriority [in point of time], are all merely His relations and His aspects. 'It is He who is the first and the last, the exterior and the interior'¹

In the fair idols, goal of ardent youth,
And in all cynosures² lies hid the 'Truth',
What, seen as relative, appears the world,
Viewed in its essence is the very 'Truth'

When in His partial modes Truth shone out plain,
Straightway appeared this world of loss and gain,
Were it and all who dwell there gathered back
Into the Whole, the 'Truth' would still remain³

Flash XXVI

The Shaikh⁴ (may God be well pleased with him) says in the Faṣṣ ṣ Shu'arbi, that the universe consists of accidents all pertaining to a single substance, which is the Reality underlying all existences. This universe is changed and renewed unceasingly at every moment and at every breath. Every instant one universe is annihilated and another resembling it takes its place, though the majority of men do not perceive this, as God most glorious has said ['But they are in doubt regarding the new creation'⁵]

¹ Koran, lvi 3 Cp Rev 1 8, 'I am Alpha and Omega'

² Literally, 'horizons'—i.e., objects of aspiration

³ I.e., the grade of plurality in Unity, or Universal Soul

⁴ Muḥiy-ud dīn Muhammad Andalusī, commonly called Ibn 'Arabi, died 638 A.H. Wrote the Faṣṣ-ul Hikam (Ḥaḍī Khalfā, iv 424). Each section is named after some patriarch—e.g., Shu'ab (Jethro)

⁵ Koran, l 14 See 'Gulshan 1 Rāz,' l 670 Text omitted in this manuscript

Among Rationalists,¹ no one has perceived this truth with the exception of the Asharians,² who recognise it in certain departments of the universe, to wit, 'accidents,' as when they say that accidents exist not for two moments together, and also with the exception of the Idealists,³ called also Sophists, who recognise it in all parts of the universe, whether substances or accidents. But both these sects are in error in one part of their theory. The Asharians are wrong in asserting the existence of numerous substances—other than the One Real Being underlying all existence—on which substances, they say, depend the accidents which continually change and are renewed. They have not grasped the fact that the universe, together with all its parts, is nothing but a number of accidents, ever changing and being renewed at every breath, and linked together in a single substance, and at each instant disappearing and being replaced by a similar set. In consequence of this rapid succession, the spectator is deceived into the belief that the universe is a permanent existence. The Asharians themselves declare this when expounding the succession of accidents in their substances as involving continuous substitution of accidents, in such wise that the substances are never left wholly void of accidents similar to those which have preceded them. In consequence of this the spectator is misled into thinking that the universe is something constant and unique.⁴

The ocean does not shrink or vaster grow,
 Though the waves ever ebb and ever flow,
 The being of the world's a wave, it lasts
 One moment, and the next it has to go
 In the world, men of insight may discern
 A stream whose currents swirl and surge and churn,
 And from the force that works within the stream
 The hidden working of the 'Truth' may learn

¹ Ahl-i nazr, as opposed to ahl-i shahūd, men of spiritual intuition

² The followers of Abū-l Hasan al Ashārī, died about 330 A H (Ibn Khallikan ii 227)

³ The Hasbāniya

⁴ This is the Heraclitean doctrine that all phenomena are in constant flux, issuing from the 'Fiery Breath' (Pneuma) and remerged in it every moment. Jalāl-ud dīn quotes the saying of 'Arqlitus' that 'Contraries are congruous,' the first suggestion of the Hegelian doctrine that contraries always involve a higher unity which embraces both. See Lumsden, 'Persian Grammar,' ii 323

As regards the Sophists, though they are right in asserting the ideality of the whole universe, they are wrong in failing to recognise the Real Being underlying it, who clothes Himself with the forms and accidents of the sensible universe, and appears to us under the guise of phenomena and multiplicity, likewise in denying any manifestation of Real Being in the grades of visible things under the guise of these forms and accidents, whereas in truth these accidents and forms are only manifested to outward view by the operation of that underlying Real Being

Philosophers devoid of reason find
This world a mere idea of the mind,
'Tis an idea—but they fail to see
The great Idealist who looms behind

But the men gifted with spiritual intuition see that the Majesty of the 'Truth,' most glorious and most exalted, reveals Himself at every breath in a fresh revelation,¹ and that He never repeats the same revelation, that is to say, He never reveals Himself during two consecutive moments under the guise of the same phenomena and modes, but every moment presents fresh phenomena and modes

The forms which clothe existence only stay
One moment, in the next they pass away,
This subtle point is proven by the text,
'Its fashion altereth from day to day'²

The root of this mystery lies in the fact that the Majesty of the 'Truth' most glorious possesses 'names' opposed³ to one another, some being beautiful and some terrible, and these names are all in continuous operation,⁴ and no cessation of such operation is possible for any of them. Thus, when one of the contingent substances, through the concurrence of

¹ See 'Masnavi,' p 24

² Koran iv 29

³ Lutf and Qahr, or Jamāl and Jalāl, the opposite Divine attributes of mercy and vengeance, beauty and terror. The Divine economy is sometimes represented as effected by the eternal struggle between these two opposite phases of Deity, as manifested in Adam and Iblīs, Abraham and Nimrod, Moses and Pharaoh, etc (see 'Masnavi,' p 301), a daring Monist hypothesis, which, needless to say, is not pursued into its consequences

⁴ These 'names,' like the Stoic logoi, are sometimes spoken of as ideas, sometimes as forces or energies

the requisite conditions, and the absence of opposing conditions, becomes capable of receiving the Very Being, the mercy of the Merciful takes possession of it, and the Very Being is infused¹ into it, and the Very Being thus externalized,² through being clothed with the effects and properties of such substances, presents Himself under the form of a particular phenomenon, and reveals Himself under the guise of this phenomenon. Afterwards, by the operation of the terrible Omnipotence which requires the annihilation of all phenomena and all semblance of multiplicity, this same substance is stripped of these phenomena. At the very moment that it is thus stripped this same substance is reclothed with another particular phenomenon, resembling the preceding one, through the operation of the mercy of the Merciful One. The next moment this latter phenomenon is annihilated by operation of the terrible Omnipotence, and another phenomenon is formed by the mercy of the Merciful One, and so on for as long as God wills. Thus, it never happens that the Very Being is revealed for two successive moments under the guise of the same phenomenon. At every moment one universe is annihilated and another similar to it takes its place. But he who is blinded by these veils, to wit, the constant succession of similar phenomena and like conditions, believes that the universe constantly endures in one and the same state, and never varies from time to time.

The glorious God, whose bounty mercy, grace,
And loving-kindness all the world embrace,
At every moment brings a world to naught,
And fashions such another in its place

All gifts soever unto God are due,
Yet special gifts from special 'names' ensue,
At every breath one 'name' annihilates,
And one creates all outward things anew

The proof that the universe is nothing more than a combination of accidents united in a single essence, i.e., the

¹ Ifāzat, production by emanation. See 'Notices et Extraits des Manuscrits,' x, p 66

² Sein evolved into dasein

'Truth' or Very Being, lies in the fact that when one comes to define the nature of existing things these definitions include nothing beyond 'accidents' For example, when one defines man as a 'rational animal', and animal as a 'growing and sentient body, possessed of the faculty of voluntary movement', and body as a 'substance possessing three dimensions', and substance as an 'entity which exists per se and is not inherent in any other subject', and entity as 'an essence possessed of reality and necessary being'—all the terms used in these definitions come under the category of 'accidents,' except this vague essence which is discerned behind these terms For 'rational' signifies an essence endowed with reason, 'that which is growing' signifies an essence endowed with the faculty of growth, and so on This vague essence is, in fact, the 'Truth,' the Very Being, who is self-existent, and who causes all these accidents to exist And when the philosophers allege that these terms do not express the differences themselves, but only the invariable marks of these differences whereby we express them, because it is impossible to express the true differences otherwise than by these invariable marks or others more recondite still, this assumption is inadmissible and undeserving of serious attention And even if we admit it as a hypothesis, we affirm that whatever is essential in relation to special substances is accidental in relation to the Very Truth, for though this alleged essential quality is part of the essence of a particular substance, it is extraneous to the Very Truth upon whom it is dependent And to say that there is any substantial entity other than the One Essential Being is the height of error, especially when the spiritual intuition of the men of truth, which is borrowed from the lamp of prophecy, attests the contrary,¹ and when their opponents cannot cite any proofs in favour of their own view ['God saith what is true, and directeth man in the right path'²]

¹ Cp 1 Cor 11 15, 'He that is spiritual judgeth all things, yet he himself is judged of no man' Or, as Hegelians would put it, the deliverances of intuitive reason are not to be tried by the canons of the discursive reason (verstand)

• ² Koran, xxxiii 4 A blank is again left for the text in this manuscript

Truth is not proved by terms and demonstrations,
 Nor seen when hidden by concrete relations,¹
 The 'Canon' is no 'Cure' for ignorance,
 Nor can 'Deliv'rance' come from 'Indications'²

If at each 'Stage' thy course diverted be
 To different 'Goals,' true goal thou'lt never see,
 And till the veil is lifted from thine eyes
 The sun of Truth will never 'Rise' for thee³

Strive to cast off the veil, not to augment
 Book-lore no books will further thy intent
 The germ of love to God grows not in books,
 Shut up thy books, turn to God and repent

The completest mask and the densest veils of the beauty of the One Real Being are produced by the manifold limitations which are found in the outward aspect of Being and which result from His being clothed with the properties and effects of the archetypes indwelling in the Divine Knowledge,⁴ which is the inner side of Being. To those blinded by these veils it seems that the archetypes exist in these outward sensible objects, whereas in point of fact these outward objects never attain a particle⁵ of those real archetypes, but are and will always continue in their original not-being. What exists and is manifested is the 'Truth,' but this is only in regard to His being clothed with the properties and effects of the archetypes, and not in regard to His condition when bare of all these properties, for in this latter case inwardness and concealment are amongst His inherent qualities. Consequently, in reality the Very Being never ceases to abide in His Essential Unity, wherein He was from all eternity and wherein He will

¹ Quyūd

² Alluding to four famous works of Ibn Sīnā (Avicenna), 'Shifā,' 'Qānūn,' 'Nujāt,' and 'Ishārāt'

³ Alluding to 'Mawāqif,' a theological work by Al Iḥī, 'Maqāsīd,' by Al Taftāzānī, and 'Matālī,' a work on logic by Al Ormawī. See Otto Loth, 'Catalogue of India Office Arabic Manuscripts,' pp 114, 460, and 148 endure to all eternity But to the vulgar, who are blinded by these veils, the Very Being seems to be relative and phenomenal, and wearing the form of the multiplicity of these properties and effects, and He seems manifold to such persons.

⁴ A'yān i thābitah dar hazrat i 'ilm, the Ideas or archetypes in Plato's 'Intelligible World' (see 'Notices et Extraits des Manuscrits,' vol x, p 65. 'ʿAin has the double meaning of 'eye' and 'essence,' and its derivatives A'yān and Ta'ayyun are used to denote the reflections of the One Being, in other words, His emanations which constitute the existences or substances in the world of visible and sensible phenomena (ʿĀlam i ʿAin)

⁵ Literally, 'smell'

Being's a sea in constant billows rolled,¹
 'Tis but these billows that we men behold,
 Sped from within, they rest upon the sea,
 And like a veil its actual form enfold

Being's the essence of the Lord of all,
 All things exist in Him and He in all,
 This is the meaning of the Gnostic phrase,
 'All things are comprehended in the All'

²[When one thing is manifested in another, the thing manifested is different from the thing which is the theatre of the manifestation—i.e., the thing manifested is one thing and its theatre another Moreover, that which is manifested in the theatre is the image or form of the thing manifested, not its reality or essence But the case of the Very Being, the Absolute, is an exception, all whose manifestations are identical with the theatres wherein they are manifested, and in all such theatres He is manifested in His own essence

They say, How strange! This peerless beauty's face
 Within the mirror's heart now holds a place,³
 The marvel's not the face, the marvel is
 That it should be at once mirror and face

All mirrors in the universe I ween
 Display Thy image with its radiant sheen—
 Nay, in them all, so vast Thy effluent grace,
 'Tis Thyself, not Thine image, that is seen

The 'Truth,' the Very Being, along with all His modes, His attributes, connections, and relations, which constitute the real existence of all beings, is immament in the real existence

¹ See Masnavi, p 42

² The following passage in brackets is omitted in this manuscript

³ In the 'Gulshan i Râz,' l 134, Very Being is said to be reflected in the mirror of not being of each being Hence it has been said, 'The All exists in all things' The author of the Gulshan i Rāz says

'If you cleave the heart of one drop of water
There will issue from it a hundred pure oceans'^{1]}

Every power and every act manifested as proceeding from the theatres of manifestation proceed in reality from the 'Truth' manifested in these theatres, and not from the theatres themselves The Shaikh (may God be well pleased with him) says in the Hikmat i 'Alīyya ² 'Outward existence ('aw) can perform no act of itself, its acts are those of its Lord immanent in it, hence this outward existence is passive, and action cannot be attributed to it' Consequently, power and action are ascribed to the creature ('abd) because of the manifestation of the 'Truth' under the form of the creature, and not because such action is really effected by the creature himself [Read the text 'God hath created thee, both thee and the works of thy hands'^{3]}, and recognise the fact that thy existence, thy power, and thine actions come from the Majesty of Him who has no equal ⁴

Both power and being are denied to us,
The lack of both is what's ordained for us,
But since 'tis He who lives within our forms,
Both power and action are ascribed to us

Your 'self' is non-existent, knowing one!
Deem not your actions by yourself are done,
Make no wry faces at this wholesome truth—
'Build the wall ere the fresco is begun'

Why vaunt thy 'self' before those jealous eyes?⁵
Why seek to deal in this false merchandise?
Why feign to be existent of thyself?
Down with these vain conceits and foolish lies!

¹ Verse 146

² The Shaikh Muḥyī ud dīn Ibn al Arabī The 'Hikmat i 'Alīyya' is the first section of his 'Faṣūṣ ul Hikam

³ Koran, xxxvii 94 A blank left for the text

⁴ The Sūfis call God, the 'One Real Agent'—Fā'il-i Haqīqī Determinism is a necessary corollary of Monism

⁵ Cp. the Hadith, 'God is more jealous than Sa'd' ('Masnavi, p 29, note) Self-assertion is presumption towards God

Flash XXVII

Since the qualities, states, and actions manifested in the theatres are in reality to be ascribed to the Very Being manifested in those theatres, it follows that if a certain evil or imperfection is found in any of them, it may possibly be caused by the non-existence of something else, for Being, quâ Being, is pure good, and whenever it seems to us that something existent contains evil, that is owing to the lack of something else which ought to exist, and not to the really existing Being, quâ Being¹

All good and all perfection that you see
Are of the 'Truth,' which from all stain is free,
Evil and pain result from some defect,
Some lack of normal receptivity.

Philosophers have alleged that the proposition 'Very Being is pure good' is a necessary (self-evident) one² By way of illustration, they have given some examples Thus, they say cold, which spoils the fruit and is an evil in relation to the fruit, is not an evil [absolutely], because it is one of the qualities [of Being], and in this respect one of His perfections, but [it is evil] because it prevents the fruit attaining the perfection proper to it Thus too killing, which is an evil, is not an evil by reason of the murderer's power of killing, nor by reason of the power of the instrument to cut, nor of the liability of the body of the person killed to be cut, but [it is an evil] because it deprives a person of life, which is the mere negation [of something positive],³ and so on

¹ 'Being is good in whatever it be. If a thing contains evil, that proceeds from "other"' ('Gulshan i Rāz,' l. 871) This represents evil as something positive So Dante says matter is intractable ('Paradiso,' Canto I) Augustine, like Jāmī, makes evil merely a deficiency of good See 'Confessions,' Book VII, chapter vii

² Zarūrat Necessary truths are those of which the contrary is inconceivable Of course, in Jāmī's time necessity of thought was supposed to involve necessity of the object of thought

³ The ideas that God is all and determines all, and that evil is unreal, may seem true to men like Augustine, glowing with religious emotion, but are untenable in practice, and if translated into hard theological formulas become a stumbling block Jalāl ud dīn quietly drops them when it comes to a question of practice

Wherever Being's ambit doth extend,
 Good and nought else but good is found, O friend,
 All evil comes from 'not-being,' to wit,
 From 'other,' and on 'other' must depend ¹

Flash XXVIII

Shaikh Sadr-ud-dīn Qūnāwī² (may God sanctify his secret) says in the book Nusūs 'Knowledge is one of the qualities pertaining to Being, that is to say, that every existing substance is endued with knowledge, and the difference in the degrees of knowledge results from the differences of these substances in their reception, whether perfect or imperfect, of Being. Thus a substance capable of receiving Being in a most complete and perfect way is capable of receiving knowledge in the same way, and that which is only capable of receiving Being imperfectly is endued with knowledge in the same degree. This difference originates in the stronger or weaker influence of 'necessity'³ or 'contingency' over each substance. In every substance in which the influence of 'necessity' is the stronger, Being and knowledge are most perfect, in the remainder, in which the influence of 'contingency' is more prevalent, Being and knowledge are more imperfect.'

It would seem that what the Shaikh states as to knowledge specially being a quality appertaining to Being is meant to convey one example only, because all the other perfections which are likewise qualities pertaining to Being, such as life, power, will, etc., are in the same position as knowledge.

Certain other [Sūfīs] have said 'No single existent thing is without the quality of knowledge', but knowledge is of two kinds, one ordinarily called knowledge and the other not so called. Both kinds, according to the men of truth, belong to the category of knowledge, because they recognise the immanence of the essential knowledge of the 'Truth' most glorious and most exalted in all things whatsoever. It is in the second class that we must place "water," for example, which is not ordinarily considered as possessed of knowledge. But we see that it distinguishes between up and down hill, it avoids the rise and runs downwards, again, it sinks into porous bodies, whilst it only wets the surface of dense bodies and passes over them, etc. Therefore, it is by virtue of the quality of knowledge that it runs, according to the capacity of one object to admit it, and the absence of opposing properties in such objects. But, in this degree, knowledge is manifested only under the form of nature¹. In this manner knowledge is immanent in all other existing things, or, rather, all perfections pertaining to Being are immanent in all things without exception.

¹ 'Gulshan 1 Rāz,' l 871

² 'An-Nusūs fi talhīq 1 taur il makhsūs,' by the celebrated Sūfī Shaikh Sadr-ud dīn Muḥammad bin Ishāq al Qūnāwī, died 672 A.H. See Ḥajī Khalfā, vi 349

³ The more 'necessary being' a thing has, the less it has of 'contingent being'—i.e., less intermixture with not-being. See note 2, p 33

Being, with all its latent qualities,
Doth permeate all mundane entities,

Which, when they can receive them, show them forth
In the degrees of their capacities

Flash XXIX

Just as the 'Truth,' the Very Being, in virtue of His absolute purity, is immanent in the substances of all beings in such wise as to be essentially identical with these substances, as these substances are, when in Him, identical with Him, in like manner His perfect qualities are entirely and absolutely immanent in all qualities of the substances in such wise as to be identical with their qualities, even as their qualities when in those perfect qualities were identical therewith. For example, the quality of knowledge, in the knowledge of the knower of particulars,² is identical with this knowledge of particulars, and in the knowledge of him who knows universals² is identical with this knowledge of universals, in active and passive³ knowledge it is identical

¹ I.e., in unconscious objects. Thus Aristotle says plants seek their own perfection unconsciously, while man does it consciously.

² Jurvyāt and kulhyāt

³ Fi'li and infi'ālī—i.e., knowledge gained by inference and reasoning, and that conveyed by immediate consciousness and sensation.

with such knowledge; in ecstatic and mystic¹ knowledge it is identical with that kind of knowledge—similarly down to the knowledge of those beings not ordinarily classed as having knowledge, wherein it is identical with such knowledge in a manner suitable to the character of such beings, and so on for the other divine attributes and qualities²

Thy essence permeates all entities,
As do Thy attributes all qualities,
In Thee they're absolute, but when displayed,
They're only seen in relative degrees³

[⁴The reality of existence is the essence⁵ of the 'Truth' most glorious and most exalted, the modes, relations, and aspects of existence are His attributes,⁶ His manner of manifesting Himself in the vesture of these relations and aspects is His action and His impress,⁷ the phenomena manifested and proceeding from this self-revelation are the products of His impress⁸

Th' essential modes in earth and heavens present⁹
Facets of Him who's veiled and immanent,
Hence, O inquirer, learn what essence is,
What attribute, what cause, what consequent]

Flash XXX

In some passages of the Fasūs the Shaikh¹⁰ (may God show mercy upon him) seems to point to the view that the existence of all contingent substances and of all perfections dependent on that existence [¹¹is to be ascribed to the Majesty of the 'Truth' most glorious and most exalted,

¹ Wajdānī and dhawqī

² Here the last quatrain in Flash XXVIII is repeated

³ Taqayyud, limitation

⁴ The following passage in brackets is omitted in this manuscript

⁵ Dhāt

⁶ Sifāt

⁷ Fi'īl and ta'thīr

⁸ Athān

⁹ Dunyā wa dīn, earth and the celestial spheres, the 'theatres' or monstrosities of the Divine perfections, rather than the world and the Moslem Church (the ordinary meaning)

¹⁰ See note 4, p 42

¹¹ This passage in square brackets is found in one British Museum manuscript. It certainly makes the sense clearer

whilst in other passages he seems to say that what is ascribed to the Majesty of the 'Truth' is merely an emanation¹ of Being, and as regards the qualities dependent on existence, they are effects produced by the substances themselves. These two statements may be thus reconciled. The Majesty of the 'Truth' most glorious is revealed in two manners—the first the inward, subjective² revelation, which the Sūfis name 'Most Holy Emanation',³ it consists in the self-manifestation of the 'Truth' to His own consciousness from all eternity under the forms of substances,⁴ their characteristics and capacities. The second revelation is the outward objective manifestation, which is called 'Holy Emanation',⁵ it consists in the manifestation of the 'Truth,' with the impress of the properties and marks of the same substances.⁶ This second revelation ranks after the first, it is the theatre wherein are manifested to sight the perfections which in the first revelation were contained potentially in the characteristics and capacities of the substances.

One grace a host of suppliant forms designed,
A second to each one his lot assigned,
The first had no beginning—of the last,
Which springs from it, no end can be divined.⁷

Wherefore, the ascription of existence and the perfections dependent thereon] to the 'Truth' most glorious and most exalted has regard to the two revelations taken together, and the ascription to the 'Truth' of existence alone, and of its dependents to the substances, has reference to the second revelation, for the only result of the second revelation is the emanation of Being into the substances, and so making

¹ Ifūzat, production by emanation. See De Sacy's article on 'Jorjūnī's Definitions' (Notices et Extraits des Manuscrits, x, p. 66)

² ʿIlmī

³ Farz ʿi Aqḍas (see 'Notices et Extraits,' x, p. 66), the first emanation, or 'aql ʿi kull

⁴ I e, the 'archetypal ideas' of the intelligible world, 'ālam ʿi ʿilmī

⁵ Farz ʿi Muqaddas, the second emanation, or nafs ʿi kull (Anima mundi)

⁶ I e, 'ālam ʿi ʿamī, the sensible world, the copy of the intelligible world

⁷ The sensible world issues from the intelligible world, and will continue 'as long as God wills' visible what had already been included in them by the first revelation

Mark well this subtle point—each quality,
Each action that in substances we see,
On one side is attributed to us,
On one to 'TRUTH,' the sole Reality

APPENDIX ¹

Whereas my aim and object in giving these explanations and hints has been to call attention to the essential omnipresence of the Majesty of the 'Truth' most glorious, and to the immanence of His light in all the grades [of sensible existence], to the end that the pilgrims and aspirants endued with knowledge and reflection may not neglect the contemplation of His Being while preoccupied with any other being, and that they may not forget the consideration of the perfection of His attributes while paying regard solely to the qualities manifested [in the sensible universe], and whereas what has been said above is sufficient for this purpose, and satisfactorily accomplishes this end, I therefore conclude the book at this point, merely adding the following quatrains

Jāmi! leave polishing of phrases, cease
Writing and chanting fables, hold thy peace,
Dream not that 'Truth' can be revealed by words
From this fond dream, O dreamer, find release ¹²

Beggars in tattered clothes their rents should hide,
And lovers take discretion for their guide,
And, since words do but veil the Loved One's face,
'Tis well for us in silence to abide

How long wilt thou keep clanging like a bell?
Be still, and learn this flood of words to quell,
Thou'lt never come to hold the pearl of 'Truth'
Till thou art made all ear, as is the shell ³

¹ Tadhyyil in one manuscript, another has 'Flash'

² The 'Masnavi' finishes in the same strain. See the parable of the Moslem who, by childlike faith, prevailed over his learned fellow-travellers (p. 304)

³ I c, the oyster shell (see 'Gulshan i Rāz,' l. 572). Here in one manuscript there follow two quatrains which are mere variations of the same theme

Thou who for grief hast soiled thy weeds with dust,¹ Soil not thy lips with speech (for soil it must),
While thou can'st commune silently with Him,
Rather than speak stop up thy mouth with dust¹

THIS treatise was completed by the help of God and the favour of His grace May He bless Muhammad and his family and his companions¹

¹ Read Khākat ba kafan V L, Chākat—i e, in token of mourning

.

APPENDICES

APPENDIX I

GHAZZĀLĪ ON 'TAUHĪD'¹

PRAISE be to God, the Creator and Restorer of all things; who does whatsoever He pleases, who is Master of the glorious throne and mighty force, and directs His sincere servants into the right way and the straight path, who favoureth them who have once borne testimony to the Unity by preserving their confessions from the darkness of doubt and hesitation, who directs them to follow His chosen apostle, upon whom be the blessing and peace of God, and to go after his most honourable companions, to whom He hath vouchsafed His assistance and direction, which is revealed to them in His essence and operation by the excellencies of His attributes, to the knowledge whereof no man attains but he that hath been taught by hearing² To these, as touching His essence, He maketh known that He is One, and hath no partner, singular, without anything like Him, uniform, having no contrary, separate, having no equal³ He is ancient, having no first, eternal, having no beginning, remaining for ever, having no end, continuing to eternity without any termination He persists, never ceasing to be, remains without falling, and never did cease, nor ever shall cease, to be described by glorious attributes, nor is subject to any decree so as to be determined by any precise limits or set times, but is the First and the Last, and is within and without

¹ This passage is given in Pococke's 'Specimen Historiæ Arabum' (Oxonæ, 1650), p. 284, and this translation of it by Ockley is copied from Hughes's 'Notes on Muhammadanism'

² 'Faith cometh by hearing' (Rom. x. 17)

³ This is directed against the Christian Trinity, which all Moslems suppose to be the equivalent of Trithism

What God is not—He, glorified be His name, is not a body endued with form,¹ nor a substance circumscribed with limits or determined by measure, neither does He resemble bodies, as they are capable of being measured and divided. Neither is He a substance, nor do substances exist in Him, nor is He an accident, nor do accidents exist in Him. Neither is He like to anything that exists, nor is anything like to Him, nor is He determinate in quantity, nor comprehended by bounds, nor circumscribed by differences of situation, nor contained in the heavens. He sits upon the throne, after that manner which He Himself hath described, and in that sense which He Himself means, which is a sitting far removed from any notion of contact, or resting upon, or local situation, but both the throne itself, and whatsoever is upon it, are sustained by the goodness of His power, and are subject to the grasp of His hand.² But He is above the throne and above all things, even to the utmost ends of the earth, but so above as at the same time not to be a whit nearer the throne and the heaven, since He is exalted by (infinite) degrees above the throne, no less than He is exalted above the earth, and at the same time He is near to everything that hath being—nay, ‘nearer to men than their jugular veins, and is witness to everything’³—though His nearness is not like the nearness of bodies, as neither is His essence like the essence of bodies. Neither doth He exist in anything,⁴ neither doth anything exist in Him, but He is too high to be contained in any place, and too holy to be determined by time, for He was before time and place were created, and is now after the same manner as He always was. He is also distinct from the creatures in His attributes, neither is there anything besides Himself in His essence, nor is His essence in any other be-

¹ This is directed against the Anthropomorphists, the Keilāmians, and the Moshabbehites. See Sale, ‘Preliminary Discourse to Koran,’ Section viii.

² Just like Philo, Ghazzālī struggles with the anthropomorphic language of the Koran, in order to remove God from contact with matter, which his reading of Greek philosophy had taught him was evil.

³ ‘Surah,’ l 15.

⁴ Directed against those who held the doctrine of Incarnation, the Halūlians.

sides Him He is too holy to be subject to change or any local motion, neither do any accidents dwell in Him, nor any contingencies before Him, but He abides through all generations with His glorious attributes, free from all danger of dissolution As to the attribute of perfection, He wants no addition As to being, He is known to exist by the apprehension of the understanding, and He is seen as He is by immediate intuition, which will be vouchsafed out of His mercy and grace to the holy in the eternal mansion, completing their joy by the vision of His glorious presence ¹

His Power — His is the dominion and the excellency and the creation and the command ² His excellency consists in His creating and producing, and His unity in communicating existence and the beginning of being ³

His Knowledge — He knows what is secret and conceals it, and views the conceptions of minds and the motions of thoughts, and the inmost recesses of secrets, by a knowledge ancient and eternal, that never ceased to be His attribute from eternal eternity, and not by any new knowledge super-added to His essence

His Will — He doth will those things to be that are, and disposes of all accidents Nothing passes in the empire or the kingdom, neither small nor great, nor good nor evil, nor profitable nor hurtful, nor faith nor infidelity, nor knowledge nor ignorance, nor prosperity nor adversity, nor increase nor decrease, nor obedience nor rebellion, but by His determinate counsel and decree and His definite sentence and will He it is who gave all things their beginning, He is the Creator and Restorer, the sole Operator of what He pleases, there is no reversing His decree nor delaying what He hath determined, nor is there any refuge to man from his rebellion against Him, but only His help and mercy, nor hath any man any power to perform any duty towards Him but through His love and will. ⁴

¹ The beatific vision of Dante's Paradise The idea came in the last resort from the Platonists, from whom Ghazzālī also probably got it

² 'Surah,' vii 52, 'Are not creation and command of Him?'

³ All created existence is one, and proceeds from the One

⁴ This language shows how easily the conception of Monotheism passed into Monism — e, the religious view into the philosophic

His Word.—Furthermore, He doth command, forbid, promise and threaten, by an eternal ancient Word subsisting in His essence.¹ Neither is it like to the word of the creatures, nor doth it consist in a voice arising from the commotion of the air or the collision of bodies, nor letters which are separated by the joining together of the lips or the motion of the tongue. The Koran, the Law, the Gospel, and the Psalter, are books sent down by Him to His apostles, and the Koran, indeed, is read with tongues, written in books, and kept in hearts; yet as subsisting in the essence of God it doth not become liable to separation and division when it is transferred to hearts and to papers.² Thus, Moses also heard the word of God without voice or letter, even as the saints behold the essence of God without substance or accident. . . .

His Works.—He exists after such a manner that nothing besides Him hath any being but what is produced by His operation, and floweth from His justice after the best, most excellent, most perfect, and most just models.³ . . .

All things were created by Him—genii, men, the devil, angels, heaven, earth, animals, plants, substance, accident, intelligible, sensible. He created them by His power out of mere privation, and brought them into light when as yet they were nothing at all,⁴ but He Himself alone existed from all eternity, neither was there any other with Him. Now, He created all things in the beginning for the manifestation of His power and His will and the confirmation of His word, which was true from all eternity. Not that He stood in need of them nor wanted them, but He manifestly declared His glory in creating and producing and commanding, without being under any obligation nor out of necessity. . . .

He rewards those that worship Him for their obedience on account of His promise and beneficence, not of their merit, nor of necessity, since there is nothing which He can be tied

¹ See Hirschfeld 'On the Qorān,' p. 14. The Logos.

² This is the opinion that the Koran was uncreated condemned by Al Mamūn in the second century A.H. See Hirschfeld on the 'I'jāz (miracle) of the Qorān,' p. 8.

³ Here we have Plato's ideas or archetypes in the intelligible world, after the pattern of which sensible objects are formed.

⁴ Privation, the Greek 'not-being.' Note also 'substance' and 'accident.'

to perform, nor can any injustice be supposed in Him, nor can He be under any obligation to any person whatsoever. That His creatures, however, should be bound to serve Him ariseth from His having declared by the tongues of the prophets that it was due to Him from them. The worship of Him is not simply the dictate of the understanding, but He sent messengers to carry to men His commands and promises and threats, whose veracity He proved by manifest miracles,¹ whereby men are obliged to give credit to them in those things that they relate.²

¹ Muhammad's miracles were the Āyāt, signs (texts of the Koran). See Hirschfeld 'On the Qorān,' pp 1, 8.

² Ghazzālī speaks as an orthodox Moslem, but Greek influences are manifest in this passage, and his statements on the thorny subject of grace and works recall those of the great Christian Platonist Augustine.

APPENDIX II

PLOTINUS

FROM Anaxagoras onwards the main principle of Greek philosophy was dualism, the opposition of the One and the many, God and the world. In an often-quoted passage Plato says the Ideal Good is beyond existence (epekeina tēs ousias)

Next in the descending scale he placed the 'Intelligible World' of Ideas or archetypes, conceived by reason (Nous). Then came the 'Sensible World' of phenomena, which were only copies of the divine archetypes reproduced in matter.¹ This matter was of itself non-existent (mē on), in fact, a mere potentiality of taking the imprints of the archetypes.

With the Stoics monism made its appearance, and took the place of the previous dualism. For Plato's 'Ideas' they substituted Logoi, thoughts, forms, or forces immanent in the universe. And these Logoi were often spoken of as all summed up in the one Logos. Most Stoics, like Epictetus and Marcus Aurelius, regarded the universe as natura naturans, manifested Logos or Anima Mundi, others regarded the Logoi as only functions of matter (natura naturata).

Philo, the Alexandrian Jew, who lived at the same time as St. Paul, managed to combine this Logos doctrine with the Hebrew Scriptures.² By allegorical interpretation he identified the Stoic Logoi with the angels mentioned in the Scriptures, and at the same time he reduced the personal Yahveh of the Scriptures to the abstract Being of Greek philosophy.

¹ See 'Masnavī,' p. 226.

² The Book of Wisdom, probably the work of a Hellenizing Jew, prepared the way for Philo, but the cautious writer speaks not of Greek 'Logos,' but of Hebrew 'Wisdom,' as the first effluent, the mirror and express image of the Deity (Wisd vii 26).

The Hebrew prophets had almost personified the 'Word of the Lord' and 'Wisdom', and Logos, with its double meaning of thought and word (ratio and oratio), was easily identified with 'Word' and 'Wisdom'. As Dr Hirschfeld has pointed out, Amn and Kalima underwent a similar process in the Koran¹. The Logos, having been thus personified, plays a very important part in Philo's system. It becomes the Demiurge or Architect of the world. The metaphor of generation is employed to picture the mode of its operation. Sometimes it is figured as masculine, sometimes as a female agent, but in either case it is one of the parents of the world of phenomena². On the whole it may be said that Philo's leading principles were, first, to remove the Deity far away from any contact with matter, and, secondly, to explain the existence of the world by the hypothesis of intermediate and subordinate agencies through whom the Deity worked, so as not to touch matter Himself.

Hence Philo's system was dualism. And this dualistic tendency was fostered by the growing influence of Manichæism. Manes, who formulated this old Persian dualism, did not live till the third century A.D., but many of the Gnostic sects of the second century A.D. held what were in fact Manichæan opinions. And this led some, like Basileides, to emphasize the separation of the Deity from the evil material world. Basileides, for instance, though he firmly believed in God, declared in hyperbolical language that He was ouk ōn, 'without existence' in the sense of the phenomenal existence known to man³. Others, like Valentinus, imagined a series of Æons or intermediate Intelligences, so as to remove the transcendental God as far as possible from contact with matter. These Æons were possibly the prototypes of the Sūfī Ten Intelli-

¹ 'New Researches in the Qurān,' 1902, p. 15. Some Sūfī theologians identified Muhammad with 'Universal Reason,' or Logos. See Palmer's 'Oriental Mysticism,' p. 43, and 'Masnavī,' p. 179.

² Yonge's translation of Philo, i. 359 and ii. 205 (quoted in Appendix to 'Masnavī'). Tholuck, when he encounters this idea in 'Masnavī,' p. 77, and 'Gulshan-i Rāz,' i. 622, finds it shocking, but few like to face the historical antecedents or parallels of cherished tenets.

³ See Mansel's 'Gnostic Heresies,' p. 147.

gences and of the Celestial Hierarchies of Dionysius, which supplied the frame of Dante's Paradise

Plotinus, who lived in the third century A D, was a mystic who busied himself with philosophy only to seek corroboration of his mystical beliefs. He started with the conviction that the One was all in all, and that all phenomena had no existence apart from it. He tried to reach a conception of the transcendental One by abstracting or stripping off all limitations and conditions incident to phenomenal existence, and by assuming that the residuum was the One. But as this residuum was void of all positive contents, it could not be conceived by common reason, and could be described only in negative terms, as 'Unconditioned,' 'Infinite,' 'Incomprehensible,' and the like. Reason could not say what it was, but only what it was not. His position thus seems to be precisely that of agnosticism, as expounded in H. Spencer's 'First Principles'. But here the resemblance ceases. Plotinus held that the impotence of reason to conceive the Absolute proved that ordinary reason must be entirely discarded in these matters, so as to give free play to the superior faculty of spiritual intuition or intuitive reason (Nous), which alone is competent to deal with them.¹ This faculty discerns the One to be no mere negation, but a supreme energy of self-manifestation.² Without any diminution or decrease of itself the One ever pours forth or rays out effluences. Hence arises an image or reflection of the One in Nous or Reason, the First Emanation, comprehending all being and all thought. From this proceeded in like manner the Second Emanation, called the 'World-soul,'³ Psychē, which acted as the mediator between the supra-sensible and the sensible worlds. This, again, generated the particular souls, human, animal, and vegetive, and, lastly, all inorganic substances. The substratum of all these manifestations of the One in the sensible world was matter, which was non-existent of itself (mē on), and yet the basis of each sensible object (bathos ekastou),¹ in other words, it was a mere potentiality of receiving the imprint of the Divine effluences

¹ Just so the Nominalists and their modern followers deny to reason a voice, not only on questions of pure ontology, but on all points settled by traditional dogma (Harnack, vi 163), but thus to discard reason altogether is to make every superstition impregnable.

² The scholastic term was 'Actus purus,' pure actuality or energizing.

³ The later history of the 'World soul' is given in Renan's 'Averroes'. Dante censured it, and the Lateran Council of 1518 anathematized it. Pope, following Spinoza, revived it.

The One, the Reason, and the World-soul, constitute the so-called Plotinian Trinity, which is one, not of equality, but of subordination. Plotinus says Reason (Nous) is the Logos of the One, and Soul (Psychē) the Logos of the Reason.²

So much for the theory. As regards practice Plotinus held that man's duty was to return to the One.³ The motive for this return was the love of the divine spark in his soul for its source, and its consequent craving to be reunited therewith. The One was itself unmoved, but attracted its effluents through being the object of their love and desire. The return was to be effected by retracing the downward course into the realm of matter. By what Dionysius later called the 'negative way,' the mystic aspirant must abstract and strip off all the material and sensuous accretions which had overlaid his real essence. This was to be effected,⁴ first, by practising civic virtues, next the purifying virtues of asceticism and self-mortification, and finally the deifying virtue of contemplation.⁵ At last he would transcend all the barriers separating him from the One, and would be absorbed and reunited with the One. Of this blessed state he could only hope to gain transient glimpses during life, but when the body perished he would abide for ever one with the One. Plotinus sums up by saying this is 'the flight of the Alone to the Alone.'

As Dr Bigg points out, this mystical ascent of the soul is ¹ 'Not being' is an equivocal term—nothing in relation to God, but a very pernicious something in relation to man.

² 'Innead,' V., 1 and 6, quoted in Whittaker's 'The Neoplatonists,' p 37, note 1.

³ Plotinus followed Plato, who had said man's object should be to attain likeness to God as far as possible (Homoiōsis tō theō).

⁴ This threefold division of the virtues agrees with the Sūfī division of the Law, the Path, and the Truth.

⁵ Contemplation, Theōria was Theou orōsis, the 'beholding God' according to the Schoolmen's derivation of the word. Plotinus says the One is seen 'in presence which is better than science' (kata parousian epistēmēs kreittōna).

described by Augustine almost in the words of Plotinus ¹ 'Thus as we talked and yearned after the eternal life, we touched it for an instant with the whole force of our hearts We said then, if the tumult of the flesh were hushed, hushed these shadows of earth, sea, and sky, hushed the heavens and the soul itself, so that it should pass beyond itself and not think of itself if all dreams were hushed and all sensuous revelations, and every tongue and every symbol, if all that comes and goes were hushed—they all proclaim to him that hath an ear "We made not ourselves, He made us who abideth for ever"—But suppose that, having delivered their message, they held their peace, turning their ear to Him who made them, and that He alone spoke, not by them, but for Himself, and that we heard His word, not by any fleshly tongue, nor by an angel's voice, nor in the thunder, nor in any similitude, but His voice, whom we love in these His creatures—suppose we heard Him without any intermediary at all—just now we reached out, and with one flash of thought touched the Eternal Wisdom that abides aboves all. Suppose this endured, and all other inferior modes of vision were taken away, and this alone were to ravish the beholder, and absorb him and plunge him in mystic joy, might not eternal life be like this moment of comprehension?'

This is an admirable statement of the Plotinian 'return' to the One ² It also well illustrates the main characteristic of the system—viz, its ultimate dependence on emotion rather than on intellect Philosophy is only the handmaid of theology, only used to support and justify pre-existing beliefs When his reason lands him in contradictions, as it must do when it tries to transcend its limits and outsoar the very atmosphere that bears it up, Plotinus straightway falls back on feeling and the inner light. Love and faith are a mighty spell, as Jalāl-ud-dīn Rūmī says,¹ and with Plotinus love and faith are always at hand to supplement the deficiencies of pure intellect.

¹ See Bigg's 'Confessions of St Augustine,' p 321 and note All these Plotinian ideas were worked into Christian theology by Clement and Origen, himself a pupil of Ammonius Saccas, under whom Plotinus had studied See Bigg's 'Christian Platonists of Alexandria'

² See Ghazzālī's account in Appendix III Also 'Hayy Ibn Yokdhan' or 'Philosophus autodidactus,' published by Pococke in 1671, and now translated by Dr Bronnle under the title 'The Awakening of the Soul' (Murray, 1905) See his Introduction, pp 17-19 A passage of this is quoted by the Quaker Barclay in his 'Apology,' edition of 1678, p 126 Plotinus's own account may be read in Thomas Taylor's translation (Bell and Son's reprint, 1895, pp 301-324)

The best accounts of Plotinus are those of Harnack in his 'History of Dogma,' English translation, i. 347, of Caird in his 'Evolution of Theology in the Greek Philosophers,' ii. 210, and of Whittaker in his 'Neoplatonists.' Opinions differ as to whether he is to be classed as a Monist or as a Dualist. This would depend on whether his 'not-being' is to be regarded as nothing or as something. Be this as it may, no one can read his impassioned outpourings without seeing that his theological reasoned statements by no means give the full measure of his beliefs. What he did believe in with a very passion of conviction was a Deity endued in some sense with the principal attributes of a personal God.

¹ 'Masnavī,' p. 262

APPENDIX III

GHAZZĀLĪ ON MYSTICAL UNION¹

'PRAYERS' have three veils, whereof the first is prayers uttered only by the tongue, the second is when the mind, by hard endeavour and by firmest resolve, reaches a point at which, being untroubled by evil suggestions, it is able to concentrate itself on divine matters, the third veil is when the mind can with difficulty be diverted from dwelling on divine matters. But the marrow of prayer is seen when He who is invoked by prayer takes possession of the mind of him who prays, and the mind of the latter is absorbed in God whom he addresses, his prayers ceasing and no self-consciousness abiding in him, even to this extent that a mere thought about his prayers appears to him a veil and a hindrance. This state is called 'absorption' by the doctors of mystical lore, when a man is so utterly absorbed that he perceives nothing of his bodily members, nothing of what is passing without, nothing of what occurs to his mind—yea, when he is, as it were, absent from all these things whatsoever, journeying first to his Lord, then in his Lord. But if the thought occurs to him that he is totally absorbed, that is a blot, for only that absorption is worthy of the name which is unconscious of absorption.

'I know these words of mine will be called an insipid discourse by narrow theologians, but they are by no means devoid of sense. Why? The condition of which I speak is similar to the condition of the man who loves any other things—e.g., wealth, honour, pleasures, and just as we see some engrossed by love, we see others overpowered by angel so that they do not hear one who speaks, or see one who passes, and are so absorbed by their overwhelming passion, that they are not even conscious of being thus absorbed. For so far as you attend to the absorption of your mind, you must necessarily be diverted from Him who is the cause of your absorption . '

¹ The Arabic text and a Latin translation of this passage are given by Tholuck in his 'Sufismus,' pp 3 and 105

² Dhikr is the term used to denote the orisons of the Dervishes

'And now, being well instructed as to the nature of "absorption," and casting aside doubts, do not brand as false what you are unable to comprehend. God most high saith in the Koran "They brand as false what they do not comprehend." The meaning of "absorption" having been made clear, you must know that the beginning of the path is the journey to God, and that the journey in God is its goal, for in this latter, absorption in God takes place. At the outset this glides by like a flash of light, barely striking the eye, but thereafter becoming habitual, it lifts the mind into a higher world, wherein the most pure, essential Reality is manifested, and the human mind is imbued with the form of the spiritual world whilst the majesty of the Deity evolves and discloses itself. Now, what first appears is the substance of angels, spirits, prophets, and saints, for a while under the veil of I know not what beautiful forms, wherefrom certain particular verities are disclosed, but by degrees, as the way is opened out, the Divine Verity begins to uncover His face. Can anyone, I ask, who attains a glimpse of such visions, wherefrom he returns to the lower world disgusted with the vileness of all earthly things, fail to marvel at those who, resting content with the deceptions of the world, never strive to ascend to sublimer heights?'

جامی تن زن سخن طرازی نهاد

اطهار قیاق بسجین خیال

در زند فقر عیب پوشی بهتر

چون برج مقصود ثوابت سخن

تا کی چو پای کردن افغان رخس

کچنه درمای تعاقب نشو

ای کرخش آفتاب چاکت بین

چون لال توان بود در کربس

اسنون گرمی پنه سارتنی

ای ساد و دل این خیال بازی نهاد

در کنگه عشق تن پنه موشی ستر

از کف و شینه مانوشی بهر

یکدم شوا این حسن ز رخس

مادام که چون صدف نگردی نه

آلوده کن ضمیر پاکت سخن

لب سجای مطن خاک بدن

تسار سالت بعون الله

و حسن توفیق و صلی الله

على محمد و علی

سید صمد
الله

ثانیست زیرا که مترتب نمیشود بر یکی نانی الاضافه وجود بر
ایمان و اظهار آنجا اندراج یافته بود در این مقتضی بجای اول

بشنو سخن شکل پستی مغلق	مفعول و صفت که شد با عیان
از یک جنبه آن جمله مضایقت با	وزوجه و کر جمله مضایقت بخ

چون مقصود ازین عبارت و مطلوب ازین
اشارت شبه بود بر احاطه ذات حق سبحانه و تعالی و میرا
نور او در جمیع مراتب وجود تا سالکان آگاه و طالبان حقا
اسماء بشود هیچ ذات از مشاهد جمال ذات غافل
سوفت و بطهور هیچ صفت از مطالعه کمال صفات و
غافل نکرند و آنچه نگوشت در ادای این مقصود کافی
بود و به بیان این مطلوب وافی لاجرم بدین قدر اقتصا
اقتاد و برین حدیث ربانی اختصار کرده شد

و در ضمن فعلی و انفعالی بنفسی و انفعالی و در ضمن علم ذوقی و وجدانی
 عیس علم ذوقی و وجدانی تا نیاتی که در ضمن علم موجوداتی که حسب
 عرف ایشان از عالم نمیدانند عین علمست که این حال ایشان
 و علی هذا الی پس سایر الصفات و کمالات

وار و پسران در عین اعیان	متنی بصفایته که در وجود نهان
بر قد قبول عین کس نیست عیان	هر وصف ز غیبی که بود قابل آن
اوصاف تو در صفاتشان	ای ذات تو در ذات اعیان
در ضمن بنظر هر ارشید ربی	وصف تو چو ذات مطلق است

کلام شیخ رضی الله عنه در بعضی مواضع فصوص
 سنو بابت که وجود اعیان ممکن است و کمالات الهیه
 موجود در آن پس سبحانه و تعالی ما تبارک و تعالی است
 و اضافه وجودی و بعضی و اضافه توابع آن با اعیان با عبارت کلی

النا بعث للوجود في الموجودات باسرها

مهر و صفی یعنی که بود قابل آن	دارد پیرایه همه اعیان جهان
	بر قدر قبول عین گشت عیان ۶

میخاک حقیت هستی از حجه صرافت اطلاق
خودش ساریت در ذوات جمع موجودات یحیی که در آن
ذوات عین آن ذوات است چنانکه آن ذوات در وی
عین بودند چنان صفات کامله او ملکیتها و اطلاق
در جمع صفات موجودات ساری اند باینکه در ضمن
صفات ایشان عین صفات ایشانند چنانکه صفات
ایشان در عین آن صفات کامله عین آن صفات کامله
بودند مثلاً صفت علم در ضمن علم عالم بحر و یات عین
علم بحر و یات است و در ضمن علم عالم بکیلیات عین علم بکیلیات

اما علم بر دو جهت یکی انکه بحسب معرفت از اعلم مگویند و دیگر
 انکه بحسب معرفت از اعلم نمیکنند و هر دو قسم مشرب است
 حقیقت از مقوله علم است زیرا که اینها سناهد می کنند
 سرایت علم ذاتی حق را بجهان در جمیع موجودات و از
 قبل قسم مانی آست مثلاً که بحسب معرفت او را عالم می دانند
 اما می بینیم او را که تمیز میکند میان بلندی و پستی از بلندی عدول
 میکند و بجانب پستی جاری میگردد و همچنین در داخل زمین
 نفوذ میکند و ظاهر چشم منکاشف را تطیب میکند و میکند
 آبی غیر دلکب پس از حاصلت علم است حیران می ر
 متقصاتی قابلیت فابل و عدم مخالفت با آن اما در
 مرتبه علم در صورت طبعیت ظاهر شده است و علی هذا التی
 سرایه العلم فی سائر الموجودات بل سرایه جمع الکمالان

و تعاون علم بحسب تعاون حقایق در قبول
 وجود کمالاً و نقصاً یا پس آنکه قابلیت موجود را علی الوجه
 الاثم الاکمل قائمین بر علم را علی هذا الوجه و آنچه قابلیت
 موجود را علی الوجه الاخص تصنیف علی هذا الوجه و نشاء
 این تفاوت غالبیت و مغلوبیت احکام و وجوب
 و امکانیت در حقیقت که احکام و وجوب غالبتر و امکان
 بر علم کاملتر و در حقیقت که احکام امکان غالبتر و وجود
 علم نافض تر و غالباً که خصوصیت حکم تبعیت علم موجود
 که در کلام متبحر واقعیت برپیشتر است و الا جمیع
 کمالات مابعد موجود را حق و قدرت و ارادت
 و غیر ما همین است و قال بعضهم قدس الله تعالی
 بر سر این جمیع فردا موجودات از صفت علم عاری

از این جهت که کیفیت از کیفیات زیرا که او از این
 جهت کمالیت از کمالات بلکه از آن جهت که سبب
 شده است بر عدم وصول شمار را به کمالات لایحه خود
 و همچنین قبل مثلا که شریت شریت او نه از جهت قدرت
 قابلیت بر قتل یا قاطعیت است یا قابلیت عضو مقول
 موقوف را بلکه از جهت زوال حیثیت و آن امر است
 حدیسی غیر ذلک من الأمثله

مر جا که وجود کرده سیرت اول	میدان تعیین که محض خیرت اول
مر شرع عدم بود عدم غیر وجود	پس شرع مقتضای غیرت اول

شیخ صدر الدین قنوی مدّ پس الله تعالی سره
 در کتاب نصوص میفرماید که علم تابعیت موجود را
 بآن معنی که در حقیقت از حقایق را که وجود است مست

چون صفیات و احوال و اعمال که در مظهر خاست
 فی الحقیقه مصائبی ظاهر در آن مظهر است پس اگر ایما
 و بعضی از آنها شری و نقصانی واقع باشد از جهت عدم
 امری دیگر تواند بود زیرا که وجودی در حثیت موجود خیر
 محض است و از سراسر امری وجودی که شری می شود
 بواسطه عدمیت امر وجودی دیگر است نه بواسطه آن
 امر وجودی در حثیت موانع وجودی

باید ز نفوت ذات پاک نماند	بر منفی که در پس خست و کمال
دارد بقصور قالیات مال	مردی که در حثیت شری و مال

حکما در آنست وجود خیر محضیت و دعوی ضرورت
 کرده اند و از برای چنین تسالی چند آورده اند و گفته که
 بزرگ و مثلاً متلف شمار است و شری نسبت با شمار و نه

نیست معانی از عبارات مجوی حواشی بانی ز علت حمل ثغ	نی رفع قیود و اعتبارات مجوی قانون نجات از اشارات مجوی
کشی بو توقف بر مواضع قلغ سرگز نشود تا کنی ز نفع حجب	شد قید مقاصد ز تمهید طالع انوار حقیقت از مطالع طالع
در رفع حجب کوشن در جمع کتب در طی کتب بجا بود شایع	کز جمع کتب نمیشود ز جمع کتب طی کن محمد را و عدالی الله تب
عظیم ترین مجای و کشف ترین نقابی جمال و حدت حتی رایتها و تعدد ایت است که در ظاهر وجود واقع شده است بواسطه نبلس آن با حکام و آثار و اعیان باتبه در حضرت علم که بطن وجود پست و مجرب از انچنان می نماید که اعیان موجود شده در خارج و حال اکتب بویسی از وجود خارجی بنمایان نرسیده است و همیشه بر عدمیت خود دود انداخته اند

مر این اعضاء را و اکستار باب نظر مکنید که امثال
 این مفومات حصول نمیشد بلکه لوازم فصولند که بان از
 فصول تغیر میکنند بواسطه عدم قدرت بر فصول تغیر
 از حقایق حصول بروجی که تمایز نمودن از ماعدای خود بغیر این
 لوازم مالموازمی که ازینها انجی باشد مقدمه ایست ممنوع
 کلام است با پسموع و بر تقدیر تسلیم هر چه نظر با جوهر ذاتی
 باشد قیاس آن عن واحد عرضی خواهد بود زیرا که اگر چه ذات
 در حقیقت خارج است از آن عین واحد و قابلیت با وجود
 اکمال آن امری است جوهری و رای عن واحد در غایت
 تسویطت تخصیص و تنقی که کشف از باب حقیقت که متبصر است
 از مشکوئیه نبوت بخلاف آن کو اسی دهد و مخالف
 عاجز باشد از اقامت دلیل

در آنی حقیقت عالم را ملک اسم فایکی تعابلیست

یل بر آنست مجموع اعضاء مجتمعه است در عین واحد که حقیقت
وجود است آنکه هر چند حقایق موجودات آنکه را تجدید میکنند
در حد و دایره اشغیر از اعضاء چیزی ظاهر نمیشود

مگر که بندگان حیوان با طیقت و حیوان جسم نامی است
متحرک با الاراده و جسم جوهر قابل مراعاه و ملکه وجود است

لامی موضوع و موجود ذاتیست که مراعاه را تحقق و حصول
باشد در بن حد و در حد مذکور میشود از قبیل اعضاء حسیست

الا آن ذات مبهم که بدین مفهومات منحطت زیرا که
معنی مطلق ذات له النطق است و معنی مای ذات

له النطق و هکذا فی الباقی و این ذات مبهم وجود
حق و هستی حقیقی است که قایمست بذات خود و مقوم

مقتضی آنجمله لایقیات و آثار کثرت صوری است
 از آن تعین منسلک کرده و در همان آن اصلاح بر مقتضای
 رحمت رحمانیه یعنی دیگر خاص که مماثل نفس پستی باشد
 متعین کرده و در آن بی نظیر احدیت مضحک کرده و یعنی
 دیگر بر رحمت رحمانیه حاصل و بکنایه الی ماشاء الله پس
 در هیچ دو آن یک تجلی واقع نشود و در سرای غیبی
 بعد م رود و دیگری مثل آن بوجود آید اما عجیب
 تعاقب امثال و ساسب احوال می پذیرد که وجود عالم
 بر یک حال است و در از منته متوالیه بر یک منوال

تسبیح کرم و فضل و رحمت وجود

دارد که بر جوانی و بزم وجود

سر اعظم جدی بخشد

سبحان الله ز جندی نروند

در سر نیل بر جهان بدم

انواع عظمی که چه حد می بخشد

در نفسی بحلیت تجلی دیگر و در تجلی او اصلاً کراست می
 ورد و آن یک تعین و یک شان تجلی نمیکرد بلکه در نفسی
 تعین دیگر ظاهر میشود و در آتی ثانی دیگر تجلی میکرد

متکی عیانست و آتشانی	در شان در جلو کس است
این نکته بخور کل بومش	کربادت از کلام حق ثانی

و سه در این است که حضرت حق را اسماست مقابله
 بعضی لطیفه و بعضی تیره و همه دایما بر کارند و تعطیل
 یک جایزه پس چون حقیقتی از حقایق امکانیه بواسطه
 شرایط و ارتفاع موانع مستبعد وجود کرد و در حمت رجائیه
 او را دریابد و بروی افاضه وجود کند و ظاهر وجود بواسطه
 لبس آثار و احکام آن حقیقت تعین کرد و تعینی خاص و
 متجلی شود بحسب آن تعین بعد از آن سبب قهر احدی حقیقتی

امواج برور زنده و آید نبود و زمان ملک دوان	بحریت نه کامنده نه آید حالم عبارت ازین جهان
جری جاری بطور طاری سرسیت جنبه الحقایق ساری	عالم بودار نه زعبرت عاری زندرمه طورهای سبزه جاری
اما خطای سوفیایه آنست که مع قولهم بالندل فی العالم باسره متنبه نشده اند بانگ یک حقیقت که متلبس میشود لصور و اعراض عالم و موجودات متعنه متعده می نماید و ظهور نیست او را در مراتب کونی حسی بر این صورت و اعراض خاکین و وجود نیست در خارج بدون او
گوید عالم حیا لی اندر گذشت سوته در حقیقتی جلوه کرد	سوفیایه که از خرد و پیر است آری عالم همه خیال است
و اما از باب کشف و شهود می بیند که حضرت حق سبحانه و تعالی

لایقی زمانین و مکر چبایه که معروفند بسو فطایه در همه اجزای
 عالم جو اسرو چه اعراض و مرکب از فریقین من و حی
 خطا کرده اند اما اشاعی سبب آنکه اثبات جو امر متجدد
 کرده اند و رای حقیقت وجود و اعراض متبدل متحده
 را با بنات قیام داشته و ندانسته اند که عالم مجمع احبیر
 نیست مگر اعراض متجده متبدل مع الانفاکس که در
 در عین واحد جمع شده اند و در سانی ازین عن ایل
 میشوند و اشال آنها بوجی ملبس سکر و ندین ناظر بواسطه
 تعاقب اشال در غلط می افتد و می نماید و دان است
 واحد مستمر کما یقول الاشاعی فی تعاقب الاشال علی
 محل الغرض من عنی تلوی آن من شخص من العین فی مثال
 لشخص الاول فظین الناظر انما امر واحد مستمر

و آخریت از نب و اخبارات اسمو الاول الآخر و الظاهر الباطن

بر شکل تان ره ز غایت	لا بلکه عیب من همه آفاق
چیزی که بود ز روی سید جهان	والله که همان ز روی طلاق
چون حق تحصیل شو کنش عیان	مشود شد این عالم رسو و دوزیا
کر باز روی عالم و عالمیان	بار تبه اجمال حق آیه بمیان

شیخ راضی الله عنه در قصه شعبی میفرماید که عالم
عبارت از اعراض مجتمعه در عین واحد که حقیقت هستی
و ان تبدل و متجدد میگردد مع التنازع الالات
در سرانی عالم بعد میرو و مثل آن بوجود می آید و اکثر
اهل عالم ازین معنی غافلند کما قال سبحانه

و از ارباب نظر کسی برین مطلع نشده است
مگر تسلسله در اجزای عالم که اعراض است حیث قالوا الا

عمدت است و او فی حد ذاته واحد است که عدد را با و راه
 نسبت ابا باعتبار تجلیات تکثره و تعینات متعدده در
 مراتب تارّه حقایق جوهریه متوسعه است و مانع حقایق
 عرضیه تابعه پس ذات واحد بواسطه متعدد جواهر اعراض
 تکثره می نماید و مرجع الحقیقت که اصلا متعدد و مشترک

ای بر هر حرف این آن نازده خط	پندارد و بی دلیل تعبیرت بخط
در جمله کائنات بی غلط و غلو	یک عین جنب دان و یک ذات فقیط

این عین واحد از حیثیت تجرد و اطلاق از تعینات و تعینات
 مذکور هفت و از حیثیت تعدد و تکثری که بواسطه تلبس
 او بتعینات می نماید خلق و عالم پس عالم ظاهر حقیقت و حق
 باطن عالم عالم مشا از ظهور عن حق بود و حق بعد از ظهور
 عین عالم بلکه فی الحقیقت یک حقیقت و ظهور و بطون اولیت

کلی اویت بر خود بصورت حقایق و ایمان حکمات پس
 فی الحقیقه وجود کی شریک که در جمع این مراتب و حقایق
 مرتبه در آن سار پست و وی درین مراتب و حقایق
 عین این مراتب و حقایق چنانکه این مراتب
 و حقایق در وی عین وی بودند

خواهی که بری ببال می مایه پے می می بود اند روی و می می لایح کردید و کس درین سپهر مجرم	هستی که طور پند در همه رور سعی جاب را کتن بر لوح عدم یو احوال مودم
---	--

چون ادمیت	حق را شمر جدا از عالم زیرک
عالم در حق حق و حق عالم	جز عالم نیست

تصدیق حقایق که ذات الهی است تالیفات

مرتبه نایه یعنی اوست یعنی جامع مرجم تعیّات فعلیه چو پیه
آئینه را و جمیع تعیّات انفعالیّه امکانیه کونیه را و این مرتبه سماء
یعنی اول زیرا که اول تعیّات حقیقت وجود اوست و ذوق
او مرتبه لا ینفست لامرتبه غیر ثالثه احدیت جمیع تعیّات
فعلیه موثره است و این مرتبه الوهیت مرتبه را بقیه فیض
مرتبه الوهیت و مرتبه اسما و حضرت ایشانست اعتبار
این دو مرتبه از حیثیت ظاهر وجود است که وجوب و
خاص اوست مرتبه خامیه احدیت جمیع تعیّات
انفعالیّه است که از شان ایثات تاثر و انفعال و این
مرتبه کونیه امکانیه است مرتبه سادیه تفصیل مرتبه کونیه
امکانیه است که مرتبه عالم است و عروض این دو مرتبه
باعتبار ظاهر غلبت که امکان از لوازم اوست و آن

وصفات و مقدسات از دلالت الفاظ و لغو
 نه نقل را در لغت جلال او زبان عبارتست و غیر عقل را بکنه
 کمال او مکان اشارت هم از باب کشف از ادراک
 حقیقتش در حجاب و نیم اصحاب علم از مشاع معوش
 در اضطراب غایت نشان از دلی نشانیست و
 بهایت عرفان وی حیرانیست

ای در تو عیانها و پنهانها همه سج	پند در تینها و گمانها همه سج
زردان تو مطلقا نشان	کجا که تو پی بودی بهام سج
هر چند که جان عارف کا	کی در حرم قدس تو اش راه بود
دست همه مل کشف از بشود	از دامن ادراک تو کو ماه
این شکست خور و لا ینک	حاشا که شود بفعل ما بدرک
خوش آمد ز نور او و مدح	ما را بر ما ند از ظلام کشت

و بسبب و اعتبارات مخصوصه است که در سایر مراتب
 نیست چون مرتبه الوهیت و ربوبیت و مرتبه عبودیت
 و خلقت پس اطلاق اسمائی مرتبه الهیت مثلا چون الله
 در حین و غیره تا بر مراتب کونیه عین کفر و محض زندگانه باشد
 و همچنین اطلاق اسمائی مخصوصه بر مراتب کونیه بر مرتبه
 الهیت غایت ضلال و نهایت خذلان باشد

ای برده کما که صاحب تحقیق	و ند صفت صدق و صحت
بر مرتبه از وجود حقیقی دارد	اگر حفظ مراتب نکند نمی نشیند

موجود حقیقی کمی شرف است و آن عین وجود حق
 و متنی مطلق است اما او را مراتب بسیار است اول
 مرتبه لایقین و عدم انحصار است و اطلاق از سر قیصر
 و اعتبار از این جهت منزله است از اضافت نعمت

نپسین بهان شان در همان حضرت و اشیا موجوده
 عبارت اند از تعینات وجود باعتبار انصبغ ظاهر
 وجود بانار و احکام خفایا نشان یا خود وجود متعین
 بهیست اعتبارات بروحی که خفایا همیست در باطن وجود
 پنهان باشد و احکام و آثار ایشان در ظاهر وجود پیدا
 یر که زوال صور علیّه از باطن وجود محالست والا
 جمل باز مآید

با همه وجود و اغارات وجود در پرده ظلمت عدم بودیم	در خارج و علم غایب ذات خود ظاهر نده عکس ذات وجود
---	---

حقیقت وجود اگر بر جمع موجودات مبنی
 و خارجی مقول و تحول میشد اما او را مراتب متفاوتیست
 و در هر مرتبه او را ایامی و صفات

هر کس که باشد نوعی از او	دارا که باشی تو کسی نیستی عوض
انستای مطلق از مفید ما بزار ذات است و الاطوار اسما الوهیت و کس سب ربو نیستی متدار مجالا نیست
ای ماعتش نو و طلبم خوبی بود	فرع طلب نیست مطلوبی بود
کمر آید محبتی من نبود	طاهر نتواند محبتی بود
لا بلکه محبت حقیقت و هم محبوب او و هم طالب حقیقت و هم مطلوب او و مطلوب و محبوب و در مقام جمع اید و طالب و محبت در مرتبه تبصّل و کثرت
ای غیر ترا بسوی تو بپیشی	حالی تو بسجده نمی آید
بدتم طالبان و مطلوبان را	آن جلوه تویی و در میان غنی
حقیقت مرثی یعنی وجودیت در حضرت علم با غار شانی که آنست منظر او است یا تو وجود

مطلق پے مقید نباشد و مقید بی مطلق
صورت نہ بندد اما مقید محتاجت بمطلق و مطلق

مستغنی از مقید پس استلزام از طرف نیست و احتیاج از
یک طرف چنانکہ میان حرکت و حرکت متضاد کہ در بد

ای در حرم قدس کوشش را جانی	عالم تبویدا و تو خود پیدا
ما و تو ز هم جدا نہ ایم اما پست	ما را تو حاجت و ترا با ما نی

و ایضا مطلق مستلزم مقید نیست از مقیدات علی سبیل
البہ کہ نہ مستلزم مقید مخصوص و چون مطلق را بدلی نیست
قبلہ احتیاج ہمہ مقیدات او نیست لا غیر

قرب تو بابا بعلل شواہد	بی ساقہ فضل از تو انبیا
مہر کہ بود تو ان کرفس بد	تو بی بدلی ترا بدل شواہد
ای ذات رفیع تو نہ جوہر عجز	فضل کرمت نیست تعقل عجز

ظهور و تحاشی شون و اعتبارات بسبب
 بظاہر وجود و عدم آن موجب تغییر حقیقت وجود و صفات
 حقیقت او نیست بلکه مبتنی بر تبدل نسب و اضافات است و آن
 مقتضی تغییر ذات فی اگر عمر و از مین زید رخیزد و بر
 یسار ششیند نسبت زید با او مختلف شود و ذاتش
 صفات حقیقه خود پنهان برقرار و همچنان حقیقت وجود
 بواسطه بقس یا مورث شریف زیاده‌تری کمال کم‌تری و محبت
 ظهور مطابق حقیقه نقصان پذیرد و نور آفتاب چرخه
 بر پاک و پدید باید هیچ تغییر می‌یابد نوریت او را پدید
 نه از شک بوی گیرد و نه از کل زنگ و نه خار عار و نه از حار انبک

بر پاک و پدید اگر تاباید فی باکی هیچ پاک او آید	چون نور رخسار خود جهان فی نور می آید هیچ
--	---

مراد باند راج کثرت شون در وحدت
 ذات نه اند راج جزو پست در کل یا اند راج منظور
 در طرف بلکه مراد اند راج اوصیاف و لوازم و چو
 و ملزوم چون اند راج نصیبت و ثبوت و برایت حسیت
 الی ما لا نهایت له در ذات واحد عددی زیرا که این سب
 در وی مندرجند و اصله لا ظهور نداردند ما دام که تنگراه
 ظهور در مراتب جزو اشین و ثلثه و اربعه و خمس و واقع نشود
 در اینجا معلوم میشود که احاطه حق سبحانه و تعالی بحج
 موجودات چو احاطه ملزوم پست بلوازم نه همچون احاطه کل
 بالجزء بطرف تعالی الله الیق نجاب قدیم

در ذات حق اند راج شان معروض	شاخ صفت ذات حق
این قاعده یاد دارد که آنجا که خدا	نه جزو و کل نه طرف نه منظور

و خواه تعلیقات و شخصیات همه شئون الهی اند که مندرج
و مندرج بودند در وحدت ذات اولاد مرتبه علم بصورت
ایمان ثابته برآمدند و ثانیاً در مرتبه عین بواسطه تلبس
احکام و آثار ایشان نظام وجود که محلی آئیند است
مرباطن وجود را صورت اعیان خارجی که فیه نسبت
در خارج الّا حقیقی واحد که بواسطه تلبس شئون و صفیات
نسکته و متعدد می نماید نسبت بانان که در صیق مراتب
مجموعی اند و با حکام و آثار آن مقبده

مجموعه کون را بقانون حق	کر دیم نسخ و در قاعده حق
حقا که ندیدیم و نخواهیم	جز ذات حق و شئون ذات حق
تا چند حدیث جسم و عباد و پنا	انما کی سخن معدن و حیوان و نبات
یک ذات فقط بود و تنقید و	این کثرت و همی شئ نیست و صفات

و آنچه با او در بحث جسم نامی مندرجست رفع کنی همه جسم
 نامی جمع شوند و چون ممیزات جسم نامی را واجب ما او مندرجست
 بحث الجسم رفع کنی همه در حقیقت جسم جمع شوند و چون
 ممیزات جسم را واجب ما او مندرجست تحت الجواهر
 العقل و الفعول رفع کنی همه در حقیقت جوهر جمع شوند و چون
 مایه الاینیاز ممکن و واجب را جوهر و عو ص را رفع کنی
 همه در تحت ممکن جمع شوند و چون مایه الاینیاز ممکن و واجب
 را رفع کنی مردود در موجود و مطلق جمع شوند که عین حقیقت
 وجود است و بذات خود موجود است نه بوجو ذراید
 بر ذات خود و وجوب صفت ظاهر است و امکان
 صفت مطلق و اعنی الایمان الثابتة الحاصلة تحلیه علی
 نفسه مسبباً بشؤون و این ممیزات خواه فصول و خواه

و شاید فی المراتب و ازین حیثیت از وجود جمیع
 موجودات مستغنیست کما قال سبحانه ان الله غنی عن
 العالمین

و اما غنای عشق پاک ای پاک چون جلوهر کمر و نظار کی جلوه	ز آلودگی نیاز با بشتی خاک کراما تو دور میان نباشیم خاک
در شان و صفت که مشی حق دارد	در خود همه معلوم و محسوس دارد
در ضمن مقدمات محتاج بخشش	از دیدن آن غنای مطهر دارد
واجب ز وجود نیک و بد مستغنیست	واحد ز مراتب عدد و دست
در خود همه را جو جاودان	از دیدن شان برون ز خود مستغنیست

چون تخصیصات و تعینات افراد و انواع
 مندرجه تحت ایچوا از ارفع کنی افراد هر نوعی دردی
 جمع شوند و چون میرات آن انواع را که فصول و خواص
 ارفع کنی همه در خفیت حیوان جمع شوند و چون میرات حیوان

و شهادت چه در دینی و چه در اخراجت و مقصود با این همه
 تحقیق و ظهور کمال است که کمال جلا و استجلاست کمال
 جلا یعنی ظهور او بحسب این اعتبارات و کمال یعنی پستجلا
 شود او را بحسب همین اعتبارات و این ظهور و استجلا
 عیناً یعنی چون ظهور و استجلا در محض خلاف کمال ذاتی که ظهور
 ذاتست در نفس خود را از برای نفس خود بی اعتبار به
 و غیرت و این ظهور است غنی غنی چون ظهور در محض
 و غنی مطلق لازم کمال است و معنی غنی مطلق است که
 شئون و احوال و اعتبارات ذات با حکما و لوازمها
 علی وجه کلی جلگه که در جمله مراتب حقایق الهی و کونی
 می نمایند در ذات را از سطرها و اندراج الکلی و جزئی
 مشاهد ثابت باشند بجمع صور و احکامها که ظاهر است

از یکدیگر و صور معاومیت ذات متلبسته بنده الاعمال
تجلیات کونیه است و بلبس ظاهر وجود با حکام و آثارها
موجب تعدد وجود است و بعضی از آن تجلیات کونیه را
عند سرایان الوجوه رفیع با حدیثه جمع شونده و ظهور آثارها
و احکامها به استعداد ظهور جمیع اسما است سوی
الو بسبب الذاتی علی اختلاف المراتب الطهور شده
و ضعیفا و غالیته و مغلوپه چون کل افراد انسانی از اینها
و اولیا و بعضی را استعداد ظهور بصفت و بعضی
علی اختلاف المذکور چون سایر موجودات و ذات
ذات با حدیثه جمع شیونها الیه و الگوینه از لا و ابد و جمیع
این تجلیات که تصاعید مرتبه و احدیه اند سار است و تجلی
چه در عالم ارواح و چه در عالم مثال و چه در عالم حس

بطون و اولیت و ازلیت و با اعتبار اتصاف با جمیع
صفات و اعتبارات مرتبه واحدیت و در اوران
هور و آخرت و ابدیت و اعتبارات مرتبه واحدیه
بعضی از آن قلمند که اتصاف ذات بانها با اعتبار مرتبه
جمیعت خواهم مشروط باشند تحقق و وجود بعضی حقان
کوئیه چون خالقیت و رزاقیت و غیرهما و خواهد نباشند
چون حیات و علم و اراده و غیرها و اینها اسما و صفات الهیت
و ربوبیت اند و صورت معلومیت ذات متبله
بهذه الایما و الصفات حقایق الهیه است و ملحق
وجود بانها موجب تعدد وجودی نیست و بعضی از آن قلمند
که اتصاف ذات بانها با اعتبار مراتب کوئیه است
چون فضول خواص و تعیانت که حمیزات ایمان خارج اند

نظام نور و طهر یا پسمال ستوره نحای او باعتبار صرف
و اطلاق ذاتیت و طور باعتبار نظام و تعینات

بگلرخ خویش کفتم ای غنچه دانا ز دهنده که من بگلرخ جان	مرحله پوشش جمع غنچه در پرده عیان با شمع پرده
رخسار بونی نقاب دیدن آن ما و اکمل در کمال شراق بود	دیدار بونی حجاب دیدن آن سیر چشمه اقیانوس دیدن آن
خورشید جو بر فلک ز ندراست و اندم که کند ز پرده ابرو	در پرده تواجیر شود دیده فالناط تحلیله عن غیر تصور

تعیین اول و حدتیت صرف و قابلیت
محض مثل بر جمیع قابلیت چه قابلیت تجرد از جمیع اعتبارات
و صفیات و چه اتصاف همه و باعتبار تجرد از جمیع اعتبارات
تا غایتی که از قابلیت این تجرد نیز مرتبه احدیت و مراو

ذات من حیث می از همه اسما و صفات محض
 و از جمیع نسب و اضافات مبرا انصاف او باین امور
 باعتبار توجه او سپت بعالم ظهور در تجلی اول که خود بخود بر خود
 نمود نسبت علم و نور وجود و شود متحقق گشت و نسبت علم
 و نسبت علم متقاضی علمیت و معلومیت شد و در پستلرم ظهور
 و ظاهریت و مظهریت و وجود و شود مستتبع و احداث
 و موجودیت و شایعیت و مشهودیت و همچنین ظهور که
 لازم نور پس مبسوط بطن و بطون را تقدم ذاتی و
 اولیت نسبت با ظهور پس اسم اول و آخر و ظاهر و باطن
 متعین شد همچنین در تجلی ثانی و ثالث الی ما شاء الله نسب
 و اضافات متضايف می شود و هر چند تضایف نسب
 و اسما و اوثق ظهور و بلکه تضایف اوثق فیضان من احجب

و اطلاق این اسم بر حضرت حق سبحانه یعنی نانی است نه یعنی اول

خر غار ضعیف جاتو نمود

پستی ثقباس عقل اصحاب نمود

ایمان همه عارضند و محسوس

لیکن بکاشفات ارباب شود

صفات غیر ذات من حیث باینجه الحصول

و عین ذات من حیث الخلق و الحصول مثلاً عالم ذات است

باعتبار صفت علم و قادر باعتبار قدرت و مرید باعتبار

ارادت و شک نیست که اینها چنانکه بحسب معلوم

مغایرند مر ذات را نیز مغایرند اما بحسب تحقق هستی

عین ذات بآن معنی که آنجا وجود است متقد و نیست بلکه

وجود نیست و احد و اسما و صفات نسب و اعتبارات او

فی در حق گویند توان گفت این

ای در همه شان ذات تو مال از نه

با ذات تو و ز روی تحقق عین

از روی تعین همه غیر از صفات

ذات همه جز وجود و قائم بود	ذات تو وجود و سادج و بسی
بس بی زنجیت یار دلخواهی	قانع نشوی بزنگ ناکاهای
اصل همه ز کما از ان بی	من احسن صنعه من اللهی

لفظ وجود را گاه بهیستی تحقق و حصول که معانی
مصدریه و مفهومات اعتباریه اند اطلاق میکنند و بدان
اعتبار از قبل مقولات ثابته است که در برابر وی امری
نیست در خارج بلکه مایات را عارض میشود در قتل
چنانکه تخمین حکما و مکملین بیتی آن کرده اند و گاه لفظ وجود
میکوینند و بیتی میخوانند که پستی وی بذات خود پست
و پستی باقی موجودات بوی و فی الحقیقه غیر از وی موجودی نیست
در خارج و باقی موجودات عارض و نیند و قائم بوی چنانکه
ذوق کحل کبریا عارفین سماء امان یقین یاب که انبی مدید

عمر حاو الی صف ان نسبت کند سنج کرده باشد
و حق ان کا پنی حب ی نیا ورده

بر عود دلم نوانت یک زمره	زان زمره ام ز پاتی تاسه عقیق
تھا کہ بعد یانایم پرو	اے خدا حق کراری مکده عشق

حقیقت حق سبحانہ جزئی نیست و پستی اورا
انخطاط و بینی فی مقدس است انست تبدیل و بغیر و مبراست
از وصیت تعدد و مکثر از سمہ نشانہائی نشان نہ در علم کج
و نہ در بیان سمہ چندان و چونہا از و پیدا و اوبی چ
و چون سمہ چنانہا با و مدرک و اواز اجاتہ ادراک
پروں چشم سپر در مشاہدہ جال او خیرہ و چیدہ سر
سینے ملا خط کمال او تیسرہ

یا من لہوا کنت باکر و حق	سم فوقی تم تحت نہ فوقی تحت
--------------------------	----------------------------

م این سبت از وی و شوارپست اما چون انا رجبیا
 لطیف درونی ظهور کند و مشغله محبوسات و مقدمات
 طن می دور اندازد آن نلبه کند بر لذات جهانی درگاه
 روحانی کلفت مجاهده از مباهنه برخیزد و لذت مشاهین
 در جانش آویزد خاطر از مزاحمت اغیار بپرد از دوزخ
 جالش بدین ترانه ترغیب است

کای بلبل جان میست پا دو	و می باید نیم سبت زیاده تو مرا
لذات جهان را همه در چاند	توفیقی که دهد دست زیاده تو مرا

چون طالب صیاد قیامده تسبیح جذبه را که
 التذاذ سبت پا در دهنش چنان درخورد باز با بدی نماند
 که تمامی تمت را بر تربیت و تقویت آن کار و عارضه جز
 منافی نیست خود را باز دار و چنان دادند که اگر فی المشکل

از قیل و ماسوی خند پُرجانه بس شور بان منافی قبا باشد

زندان که بمانی خوشین میخوای	از زم مستیست جوی کی گاهی
نایکمه موز خوشین آگاه است	کردم ز پی از ره فتنه

توحید یگانه گردانیدن دلست یعنی تخلص و تخرید
او از تعلق با پستی حق سبحانه هم از روی طلب و ارادت
و هم از جهت علم و معرفت یعنی طلب و ارادت او از همه
مطلوبات و مرادات منقطع گردد و همه معلومات و
معتقولات از نظر بصیرت او مرتفع شود از همه روی
توجه بگرداند و بغير از حق سبحانه آگاهی و شعورش نماند

توحید برف صوفی ای صاحب سیر	تخلص دل از توجه اوست یعنی
در مری ز نهیات مقامات طوبی	کشم تبو کر فتم کس منطلق طبری

ما دام که آدمی بدام سوا و وسوسه گرفتار است

آن نسبت قوی تر کوشش می باید کرد تا خواطر متفرقه از
ساحت بینیه پنجه پرون زند و نور ظهور پستی حق سبحانه بر
باطن بر تو افکند ترا از لوبستاند و از فراجت اغیار بر ماند
نه شعور بخودت ماند نه شعور بخدم شعور بل لم یبق الا الله الواحد الاحد

یار بادی گزینی خود بزم	از بند بزم و زبیدی خود بزم
در پستی خود و مرا خود بخود کن	تا از خودی و بخود خود بزم

از آنکه فاشیوه فوستر این است	کی کشف و یقین معرفت به دست
رفت او زمین همین خدا نامد	الفقر اذا تم هو الله

فنا عبارت از انیت که بواسطه استیلائی ظهور
پستی حق بر باطن مابوسی او شعور ماند و پوشیده نباشد که فنا
فنا در فنا مندر جست زیرا که صاحب فنا را اگر بقای خود شعور
شد صاحب فنا نباشد بجهت آنکه صفت فنا و موضوع آن

در هیچ وقتی از اوقات و حالتی از حالات از ان نسبت
 خالی نباشد چه در آمدن و رفتن چه در خوردن و خفتن
 و چه در نشستن و گفتن و با بیکدیگر در جمع حرکات و سکات
 حاضر وقت می باید بود تا بطلالت نکند و در بیک
 واقف نفس باشی تا بفعالت بریاید

رخ کرده نمی نمایم سال سال	حاشا که بود چه ترا و نیم سال
دارم همه جا بیکم در حال	در دل ز تو آرزو و در دیده خیال

تجلیانکه امتداد نسبت مذکور بحسب قبول
 جمیع اوقات و ازمان واجبست همچنان از ذیاد کیفیت ان
 بسبب تعوی از ملائسه اکوان و تبری از ملا حظ صورایمگان
 اتم مطالبست و آن جز بیکدی بلوغ و جدی تمام نیست و خواطر
 و اوامام متبیه نکرد و در حین خواطر مشغی تر و سوا و مشتغی تر

اقبال کنی و تحقیقی ششغال نمایی که درجات موجودات همه بجا
 جمال اویند و مراتب کانیات مرانی کمال او برین نسبت
 چندان مداومت نیامی که با جان تو در آمیزد و هستی تو از نظر
 تو برخیزد اگر بخوای روی او روی باو آورده باشی و چون
 از خود تعبیر کنی تعبیر از او کرده باشی تمیذ مطلق شود و انانیت تو از حق

و بر لبیل پیرایسل بانی
 ایست کل شیه کنی کل باشد

و ز مردن و زیتن تو می مقصودم
 کرمین لولیم ز مر تو پی مقصودم

اما بان شته جمال وجه مطلق
 جان در غلبات شوق او متحرک

که در دل تو کل گذر دل باشد
 تو جز روی و حق کلیت اگر روی

ز این پیشش جان تو می مقصودم
 تو در بر بزی که من برستم ریا

کی باشد کی لباس هستی شده شوق
 دل در سطوات نور او تنگ

و ز زش ان نسبت شمر غنمی باید کرد و بر وجهی که

ای سحر از پس مقید چه	از بر طبعی جمال مطلق مان
----------------------	--------------------------

آدمی اگر چه بسبب جهالت و رغبت کلمات
اما بجز روحانیت و در نهایت لطافت بهره روی
آرد حکم ادا گیرد و بهره تو به کند زنگ آن نبرد و لهذا
حکما گفته اند چون نفس ناطقه بصورت مطابق حقایق متجلی شود
و با حکام صادق آن متفق گردد صارت کائنات الوجود کلمه
و ایضا عموم خلایق بواسطه شدت اتصال برین صورت
جهانی و کمال اشتغال برین پیکر میولانی چنان شده اند که خود را
از آن باز نمی دانند و آینه آری تواند و فی الشیخی المولوی مدظله

ای برادر تو همین اندیشه	باقی تو اسپه جوان و ریشه
که گشت اندیشه تو کشتی	در بود جاری تنبیه کشتی

بس باید که بگویش و خود را از نظر خویش بر دانی

جبل علی الاطلاق ذو الجلال والاقتدار
 سر جمال و کمال که در جمع مراتب ظاهرست پر تو جمال و کمال
 اویت آنجا تافته و ارباب مراتب بدان سمت
 جمال و صفت کمال یافته سر کرا و انبانی دانی اثر و انبانی
 اویت و سر کجاینبانی شپنه نمره بنای اویت
 و با کمال نه صفات اویت ارا و کایت و اطلاق
 فرموده و در حقیقت جزویت و تقدیر بجلی نموده ناتوان
 جزو کل راه بری و از تقدیر اطلاق روی آوری نه انک
 جزو اکل شمار داین و بمقتدار مطیعین زمانی

چشم تاجش کل آن شمع طراز من اصلم و کلمای هر فرع منست	چون دید میان گلنم گفت نیاز از اصل حیا بغیر می نیاز
ای لطیف قد و صباحت خد و بیله زلف مجده حکمی	و بیله زلف مجده حکمی

بیت آمل و امانی چندی و پشت اتقا و برین فرخنا
 فانی چه پنه دل از تیره برکن و در خدای بند و از همه کل
 و با خدای میوند اوست که همیشه بود و همیشه باشد
 و چهره بقایش را خا هر هیچ حادثه نخر اشد

خواهد فلکش زود در چشم تو بود بود بیت همیشه با تو و خواهد بود	هر صورت دلکش که تر از روی و در دل نیکی ده که در اطوار
حرف غمشان بلوغ دل چینی که نه جاودان از این سپهر	رفت آنکه بقبله تیان روی اسنگ جمال جاودانی دام
آخر هدف تیر فنا باشد آن به که بزند کی جدا باشد	چیزی که نه روی در بقا باشد از حریف ببرد کی جدا خواهد شد
پداست که مدت بقا چند کشا دل و جان اهل است	ای خواب اگر مال اگر فرزند خوش آنکه دلش بد لبی در بند

حق سجان و فغانی همه جا حاضرست و در
 چال نظام و باطن همه ناظرست روی خسارت که تو
 دیده از لقای او برداشته سوی دیگر گریه و
 طریق رضای او بگذاشته راه دیگر سیری

 گفتم ز تو بر خاطر من گران باشم تو نهی چشم بسوی دران 	 امیر پسران دلبخونین گران شربت باد اکدم بسوی گران
 واصل تو بجد جویان غم بهتر که جمال خوب رویان غم 	 یاسم بر ابرو عشق بویان غم یک چشم زدن خیال و شیط

باسوی حق غوغا در مرض زوالست و فنا
 چشمتش معلومست محدود و صورتش موجودیت موسوم
 می روزنه بود داشت و نه نمود و امر و ز نمود است
 بی بود و پیدا است که فردا از وی چه خواهد گشود زانگاه

مایه و متحد و پراکنده سازی جمعیت آنکه از همه بشاید
 واحد پردازی جمعی گمان نبرند که جمعیت در جمع اسباب
 در تفرقه ابد مانند فرقه یقین و انباشد که جمع اسباب
 از اسباب تفرقه است دست از همه افتادند

مشکل شود و آسوده تر اول نمه

دل را یکی پیار و بکلی نمه

در مذنب اهل جمع شمران

نسایه خود چهل می نسایه

جز راه وصول رب ارباب

جمعیت دل جمع اسباب محبی

نیکی اصول و حکمت و مندرجه

شرفی خرد ابد اریان و یونجه

ای در دل تو منرا مشکل نمه

چون تفرقه دلست حاصل نمه

ما دام که در تفرقه و و پورا

لا والله ناس نه نینایه

ای سالک رنج بر باب یکی

چون علت تفرقه است اسباب

ای دل طلب کمال در درجه

من فکر که جز ذکر خدا و پیوسته است

در عالم قهر بنی شانی اولی

نیاکنس که نه اهل ذوی سپار بود

شم گری چند خورشیدان

باشد زین هیچ مدان محمدان

در حصی عشق بی زبانی اولی

کشف بریق ترجمانی اولی

در ترجمه حدیث عالی سندان

این تجنی رساند شاه عدان

مَا جَعَلَ اللَّهُ لِرَجُلٍ مِنْ قُلُوبَيْنِ فَحَسْبُ عَيْنٍ

که ترا نعمت پس داده است در درون تو خزین دل

نهاده است تا در محبت او میکروی باشی و یک دل واز

غیر او معرض و بر و قبل نه اکث یک دل را بصدیق

کنی و همراه را در پی مقصدی آواره کنی

ای آنکه بقبله و فار و پترا

دل دپی ان دان نیکو پترا

بر مغر خراجا شد پترا

یک دل داری بست کیت دوا

تفرقه عبارت از آنست که دل را بواسطه تعلق

یارب بر یانیم ز خراج خود	راهی و بسیم کوی عفان چه بود
بس کبر که از گرم پستان کوی	یک کبر و گر کنی مسلمان چه بود
یارب ز دو کون بی با گرم کون	وزا فیه فقره سپر فرارم کردا
در راه طلب محرم رازم کردا	زان ره که نه سوی تیت کردا

این رساله است مستی باواج در بیان معارف
و معانی که بر الواح اسرار و ارواح ارباب عفان و اصحاب
ذوق و وجدان لایح کشته عبارات لایقه و اشارات را
متوقع که وجود متعین پی این سازا در میان نه پید و بر بیاض
اعراض و ساطع اعتراض شنند چه ادر ادرین گفت و کوی
نصیبی جز مضیّب ترجمانی فی و بهر غیر از شیوه سخن بانی فی

من سجم و کم از سجم سیم سیم	از سجم و کم از سجم سیم سیم
سر سکه که ز امیر احقیت کیم	ز انم نبود بهر بحسن کفایت

با بنگای و سرچرخ را چنانکه نیست با بجای پستی برابر دارد
 صورت پستی جلوه داده از پستی بر جلال پستی بر پند
 این صور خیالی را آینه تجلیات جمال خود گردان علت
 حجاب و دوری و این نقوش می راسد مایه و انای و پند
 ماکردان نه آلت جهالت و کوری و محرومی و محوری
 همه از ناپست ما را بجا بگذارد ما را از ما رهایی گرامست
 کن و با خود آشنای ارزانی دار

یارب دل پاک و جان پاکم ده	آه شب و کیه سحر کامم ده
در راه خود اول از خودم بخود کن	اگرچه خود ز خود به خود را هم ده

یارب همه خلق را بجز من	و ز جمله جهانیان مرا یک کن
روی دل من حرف کل از حق	در عشق خودم بخت و یک کن

ما را چه بد و نمانی بود	سم حمد و نمانی تو پس نمانی بود
-------------------------	--------------------------------

جایی که زبان آورانا افصح علم فصاحت انداخته و خود را
در ادای ثنائی و عابث شناخته شکسته ربانی رایحه امکان
ربان کتبی و مشتقه رایبی رایحه مارای سخن آرایبی ملک انشا
اطهار اتراف بغیر و قصور عین قصور است و با آن سرور
دین و دینی درین معنی مشارکت حسن احسن ادب دور

مکن یتیم اندر چه شمارم کجیم	نام پندی سکا نشن بشنوم
در قافله که او است دایم نرم	این پس که رسید ز دور با کجیم

اللهم صل علی محمد و صلیب لواء الحمد و صاحب المقام المحمود
و علی اله و اصحابه الفایز بن نبیل المجد و دلیل المقصود و دستگیر
آلئ الخی خالصین عن الاشتغال بالملایه
وارزاق الحقایق الاشیاء کما هی غشا و غفلت از نصر بصیر

لا اُحصى شانهایک کیف وکل شایعود الیک جل عن
 نیای جناب قدسک انت کما شئت علی نفیک خدا
 سپاس نوبر زبان نمی آیم و ستایش تو بر تونی ستایم
 مرچه در صحایف کائنات از جنس اثینه و محامدست همه
 بجناب عظمت و کبریای تو عایدست از دست وزبان
 ماجر آبد که سپاس و ستایش ترا شاید تو چنانچه که خود
 گفته و گوهر شای توانست که خود منقش

انجا که کمال کبر برای تو بود	عالمین از بحر عطای تو بود
------------------------------	---------------------------